The Progress of the Kingdom

The Religious Outlook in Japan

A TOKYO cable in the daily papers of May 16th announced that on the previous day, Sunday, "a great religious meeting, promoted by influential men, was held in the park to determine the question of founding in Japan a Church pro-Christian in character, but on independent lines." Leading men, the dispatch continued, "consider that the time has arrived to adopt the elements approved by the majority of civilized nations. An edict establishing a National Church is not improbable."

Whatever may be the exact character of this movement, it is interesting because it indicates a recognition of the fact that the foundation of the national life must be laid in religious conviction, and because it is an apparent admission of the inadequacy of the present native systems of religion. It would be a mistake, however, to suppose that this event foreshadows the early turning of the Japanese Empire to Christianity. Some of the leading Japanese thinkers, profoundly dissatisfied with the old ethnic faiths, have proposed in times past to establish a new religious system by selecting certain elements from existing religions and fashioning them into a new eclecticisim. Somehow they cannot free themselves from the belief that it is possible to provide a new religion for a people in much the same way that a new constitution might be adopted by a state. Thirty years ago, partly as a result of the famous Iwakura Embassy to western nations, Japanese statesmen were led to consider whether the adoption of Christianity—or some modification of it—as a state religion might not be a good thing for the nation. When it was explained by European advisers that Christian faith could not be imposed upon a nation, but must be a growth from within and must find expression in thought and life, the proposal was abandoned. The Japanese Christians—or most of them—realize fully the impossibility of any such method. This incident of thirty years ago, by the way, seems to have given some people in this country the impression that Japan once investigated Christianity with a view to its national adoption, found it wanting, and summarily rejected it. We would not appear to disparage any earnest endeavor of the Japanese people to "feel after Him" who alone can supply their needs, personal and national. We believe that God, in some way, is "working His purpose out" through them and in them. There is danger, however, that, laying hold upon half the truth, they may make a false start which would forestall the purpose their leaders have in view.

*The Growth of Christian Influence in

not until in 1872 that the first native congregation was organized into a church with twelve members. Now there are fully 150,000 native communicants, with scores of self-supporting congregations. Moreover, the influence of Christianity is felt deeply and widely among many who are not numbered with its professors. "It is not an exaggeration to assert," says a recent writer, "that the influence of Christianity in Japan is one hundred times its statistical strength." Some of the leading men of the nation are members of the native Christian churches. Thirteen members of the lower house in the Japanese Diet, corresponding in some ways to our Congress, are Christian men. Mr. Kataoka Kenkichi, who died a few months ago, after several successive elections as president of the House, was a Christian man—an elder in the Nippon Kirisuto Kokwai, or "Church of Christ in Japan," which is the Japanese union of all the Presbyterian bodies in the empire. Numbers of gallant military and naval officers are Christians, as well as some of the leading journalists—among them the editors of three of the great Tokyo dailies. Some of the native Christian leaders are emphasizing Japan's responsibility as the religious teacher of the whole Asiatic continent. When the Tokyo synod, composed entirely of Japanese delegates, held its annual meeting in April, it unanimously adopted a plan of apportionment for the support of the missions maintained by the Nippon Sei Kokwai in Formosa. In future, three and one-third per cent. of the total annual offerings of the congregations in the District of Tokyo is to be given to the Japanese Church Missionary Society. Bishop McKim considers this the most important and progressive step the Japanese Church has taken since its organization in 1887. It seems to be typical of a growing recognition of Christian responsibility.

*The Strategic Position of Japan in World
Evangelization*

BUT, in spite of decided Christian gains, the fact remains that Japan is a heathen country. It is unwise to allow our admiration for the adaptability of her people to modern conditions, and their readiness to appropriate the achievements of western civilization, to blind our eyes to this fact, even though we believe that in the present conflict with Russia, Japan is the undoubted champion of world-progress and of religious liberty. Japan to-day, as never before, is a strategic point in the campaign of world-evangelization. Saturate the national life with Christian principles and ideals, and a long step forward will have been taken toward the Christianization of Asia. Japan's influence in China is growing steadily, particularly along commercial and educational lines. Her prestige there will be increased by her successes in the war. The Russianization of China would present a well-nigh hopeless problem; yet, on the other hand, the Japanization of China is not at all to be desired. Bishop Graves, who has just returned from a visitation to the interior points on the Yang-tse River, has been greatly impressed by the growth of Japan's influence. The events of the past year make abundantly plain the wisdom and reasonableness of the appeals of missionaries, years ago, for an aggressive campaign in Japan, because of the certainty of Japanese influence in China in years to come. Valuable time and many points of vantage have been lost through failure to give the needed support, but this is no reason for failure to take full advantage of present openings. Japan to-day presents an inspiring—if a critical—opportunity. We trust that the appeal which comes to us from the Missionary Association of Central Japan, signed by the representatives of several Christian bodies in the United States and England, may have a worthy response.

in the Far East and Missionary Work*

"WE are at the commencement," say its signers, among whom is Dr. Laning, of our mission, "of what promises to be a stupendous struggle, the burden of which will be sorely felt by the soldiers, their families and the nation, whatever the final issue of the contest may be. The solemnity of mind and deepened sense of need so widely occasioned by the dangers and sorrows incident to war are preparing the hearts of many for a welcome reception of Christ and the better hopes and more enduring joys of His Gospel. It is of the utmost importance, therefore, that the Church should grasp the present situation with all the power of an inspiration and signalize this event in Japan's history by a generous and vigorous response to the call it makes to Christian faith, sympathy and devotion.

"The drain upon the wealth of the country is already being felt by the Japanese churches and by the institutions which they support, increasing the difficulty of maintaining self-support. It will be necessary, therefore, in order to conduct evangelistic enterprises in any way commensurate with the present opportunity, to call upon the churches abroad for special funds and contributions. For the distribution of tracts and Scriptures, the visitation of the sick and wounded in hospitals, the holding of preaching services for the thousands of soldiers waiting in Japan and for the sending of chaplains with the armies going to the front, the various mission bodies and Japanese churches, acting separately and in co-operation, have already begun to plan and to work. But for the successful and continued prosecution of so vast an undertaking adequate provision cannot be made from local contributions alone.

"We therefore have felt constrained to appeal to the sympathies of those who enjoy the blessings of peace, with the hope that the Spirit of Christ may move in a special manner upon the heart of His Church, causing an increased flow of appropriations and donations to this field, through the duly constituted missionary agencies, for the purpose of carrying on greater evangelistic effort suited to the enlarged opportunities occasioned by the war."

Bishop Rowe at Valdez

SO far as the accidents of dress and outward appearance are concerned, the Bishop of Alaska, whom the readers of this issue will follow over glaciers and mountain summits, battling against cold, starvation and fatigue, is quite a different person from the Bishop of Alaska upon whose resolute and kindly face they will look in the frontispiece. Mr. Taylor says of the Bishop's appearance when he reached Valdez after the last hard journey: "He was fearfully and wonderfully arrayed, and looked in no wise like a bishop of one of our home dioceses, but just like a genuine Alaska 'musher,' with a French toque upon his head, the tassel worn off, moccasins and two or three pairs of German socks on his feet, worn badly at the heel from the ge-pole of his sled rubbing against them. His trousers were tucked into the socks, which reached to his knees. A blue sweater and Yukon mittens completed the outfit. His face was weather beaten and drawn, and he looked quite worn out." That was on Monday. On the following Sunday the Bishop preached morning and evening. No wonder "the large congregations crowded the little church," or that, on the next Sunday, when he told the people something about his journey, "they listened intently for over an hour, and were sorry when he stopped." On the third Sunday of his visit, the Bishop confirmed four adults. Before leaving, Bishop Rowe made arrangements for some improvements in the hospital building, where Miss Deane continues to render valiant service to the needy sick. We are grateful to be able to say that friends have provided the money for the altar and font at the Valdez church. Some simple hangings, altar linen and other chancel furniture are still needed, so we venture to repeat the suggestion that these articles might be given as thank-offerings for Bishop Rowe's safe return.

*Wanted: Two Clergymen
for Porto Rico*

GUANICA, Aguirre, Jayuya—these are unfamiliar names; but each of them stands for a crying need. Each of them spells "possibility"—for the Church in Porto Rico. From each of them people have come to Mr. Watson at Ponce, asking for the ministrations of the Church. Let Jayuya typify their common need. A small town in the mountains, a day's horseback journey from Ponce, over a difficult trail, it is the centre of one of the best agricultural sections in the southern part of the island. Here are 1,000 or more people, with over 300 children, without religious ministrations of any kind, and equally without school privileges. The nearest churches, Roman of course, are from two to three hours distant over red clay trails, in some seasons almost impassable. The people have asked for the services of the Church. The owner of one of the plantations offers to give a house, suitable for residence and school use. For the present, it will do for a church also. Not a dozen people in the community can read or write and its moral standards are on a correspondingly low plane. Yet this is American territory. The immediate need is for two clergymen who are willing to volunteer for this service, and to be associated with Mr. Watson at Ponce as the central station. Bishop Van Buren will be in the United States soon after June 1st. In the meantime, the Corresponding Secretary, 281 Fourth Avenue, New York, will take pleasure in giving further information to those who may be willing to join Mr. Watson in ministering to these people.

*A Member of the Chinese
Royal Family
Visits
St. John's College,
Shanghai*

HAD any one been rash enough to suggest in the summer of 1900 that within four years a Chinese prince of the blood royal would visit a missionary college and express his appreciation of its work, he would have been laughed out of court by the wise people who saw in the Boxer outbreak the logical and legitimate end of all missionary effort. Nevertheless, during his recent visit to Shanghai, en route to the United States as Royal Commissioner to the St. Louis Exposition, Prince Pu Lun, in spite of the attentions that were being showered upon him by Chinese and foreign officials, made time to visit St. John's College. The five-mile trip from the city to Jessfield afforded an interesting contrast—nothing less than a member of the most conservative class of the most conservative people on earth riding in an automobile! Not the college automobile, let us hasten to explain, lest someone may accuse a missionary college of indulging in wanton luxury. We are tempted to stop and ask the people who object to sending missionaries to China, why it is proper for our manufacturers to supply China with automobiles and other modern conveniences, like the telegraph, telephone, and trolley, all of which may be found in this same city of Shanghai, while, in their estimation, it is improper for Christian churches to send to China, through their missionaries, the knowledge of the best news that ever came into the world? But this is a large subject. For the present suffice it to record that the Prince greatly enjoyed his automobile experience, even though, as one of the St. John's students wrote, in telling the story of the visit in a composition, "the automobile, like a locomotive, ran so fast that the Prince was exceedingly surprised." His Highness was met by the college battalion in dress uniform and escorted to the home of the president, where, in accordance with Chinese courtesy, he was entertained with tea and refreshments. After the battalion had displayed its skill in military drill, the Prince started on a tour of inspection of the buildings and grounds. On all sides he found much to draw forth his expressions of hearty approval. In an address to the students, he voiced his appreciation of their work, their general appearance, and particularly their respect for the Chinese flag, which they had saluted in their march past during the drill. The hope of China, he said, was in such young men as they.

*St. Paul's College,
Tokyo:
Its Growth and Needs*

ST. PAUL'S COLLEGE, Tokyo, has also been honored by a visit from important officials, in connection with its recent commencement exercises. The two visitors were Mr. Yukyo Ozaki, Mayor of Tokyo and a member of the Diet, and Mr. Saburo Shimada, a member of the Diet. They are the two most noted orators in Japan, represent the best type of the younger generation of Japanese statesmen and are noted for their uprightness of character as well as for their brilliant abilities. Mr. Shimada spoke of love and sacrifice as the two underlying principles of Christianity; while Mayor Ozaki urged the necessity of strength, mental and physical. The students themselves, President Tucker remarks, "were a pretty good illustration of what Mayor Ozaki said about physical endurance, as they had to stand throughout the exercises and the speeches, there being no seats in the public hall except a few chairs, sufficing only for the guests." On the afternoon of Easter Day the baccalaureate sermon was preached in Trinity Cathedral by Dr. Motoda. So far from there being any falling off in attendance, which might easily result from the war and from a new government regulation in the educational department, the number of students has been larger than ever—520 in the regular course, with forty-three postgraduates. The evangelistic and religious work of the College has gone on well during the last year. The Young Men's Christian Association has 120 members. There are three Bible-classes for day pupils, and compulsory religious instruction is given regularly in the dormitories. Weekly Bible lectures, with voluntary attendance, have also been held with excellent results. The alumni of St. Paul's are enthusiastic workers on its behalf, and are sending their sons and younger brothers to take the course. It is a pity that, with its excellent present work and outlook, the College should be so hampered by lack of equipment. All kinds of makeshifts have to be employed to secure additional space. St. Paul's ought to be enlarged. A gift of $5,000 from this country would make this possible.

*Why Georgia
Needs Industrial Schools*

IN saying that the percentage of illiteracy among the native white people of Georgia is two and one-half times greater than the average for the whole country, we have no intention of casting reflection upon the State, its people, or its officials. However the condition may have come about, we mention it simply to call attention to the need for the educational work which Bishop Nelson hopes to be able to inaugurate in the near future. It is not pleasant to think that in any one of the United States it should be true, as it is in Georgia, that thirty-two per cent. of the voting population is illiterate. This is a condition which cannot be changed at once. It will only yield to a campaign of education among the children in the many neglected country districts. At the present time, out of a school population of 885,000, over 572,000 children are out of school. Bishop Nelson hopes to be able to begin some industrial work among these neglected white people along lines that have already proven successful in the work among the colored population. The ability to make home brighter, better and happier is something that thousands of the poor white girls and young women of Georgia need to learn, while the boys and young men offer abundant opportunity for teaching them "how to do things." Bishop Nelson could use thousands of dollars at once in this in-enterprise of giving industrial education to the white boys and girls of the state.

A Significant Gift for Ingle Hall

THE fund for the erection of a new building for Boone School, to be known as "Ingle Hall," in memory of the late Bishop of Hankow, is growing slowly. About $3,000 of the needed $15,000 are in hand. One of the most recent contributions is a gift of $14.37 from the Chinese school of Grace Church, Charleston, S. C. Probably there will be no more significant gifts for this new building than the contribution of these Chinese residents in a strange land, who thus show their appreciation of the life of one who wished well for their people, and their desire that their countrymen in China may come to know the blessings of Christian education. The Ingle Memorial Committee is ready to receive further contributions addressed to it at the Church Missions House, New York.

*Bishop
Schereschewsky's
Plans for Further Work in Giving the Bible to China and Japan*

HAVING finished his translation of the Old and New Testaments into the classical Wenli, and thus giving the entire Bible to an Empire of more than 300,000,000 people, Bishop Schereschewsky has no thought of rest. When Bishop Graves went to Tokyo a few months ago to consult him concerning his plans for further translations, he found the aged Bishop in good health and working as enthusiastically as ever upon the great tasks he has set himself. Summer and winter, almost without break, he does eight hours' work a day, and his vigorous mind outruns the ability of his native scribes to keep up with him. At the request of the American Bible Society, he is now preparing a Chinese reference Bible. This in itself is an undertaking that might well tax the entire energy of a much younger man. Side by side with this tedious task, and as a partial relief from it, the Bishop plans to carry on the translation of the Apocrypha. A little later he expects to adapt the completed Wenli version of the Scriptures for use in Japan. Altogether, he has laid out work which will occupy him for the next four years, if his health continues to be good. Bishop Graves says that "it is an enormous mass of work for anyone, let alone a man who is a paralytic, but with him, as with St. Paul, hindrances do not seem to matter. One cannot help thinking of St. Paul's words in his imprisonment, 'The Word of God is not bound.'"

*Missionary Conferences
During the Summer*

ANNOUNCEMENTS already made in THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS indicate that abundant opportunity will be offered this year to those who wish to turn the whole or part of their summer holiday to good account. Distinctively representing the Church's work are the "School of Missions," at New Milford, Conn., July 6th to 16th, and the conference under the direction of the American Church Missionary Society, at Richfield Springs, August 4th to 14th. Success seems assured for both of these enterprises. There is every reason to believe that they will richly repay attendance. The conference of the Young Peoples' Missionary Movement will be of a more general character, bringing together, as it does, representatives of several Christian bodies. A few young Churchmen and women have attended the sessions the last two years, to the great gain of their own work on behalf of missions. We hope there may be a much larger attendance this year. As Church people, we have something to learn from the carefully devised and well applied missionary methods of fellow-Christians. So, too, we have something to contribute to such a gathering. The Corresponding Secretary, 281 Fourth Avenue, New York, will supply information concerning all these occasions.

"THE DOGS HAULING A SLED WITH ABOUT FOUR HUNDRED POUNDS"

Through the Alaska Winter

BY THE RIGHT REVEREND PETER T. ROWE, D.D., BISHOP OF ALASKA

The following article contains extracts from a letter written by Bishop Rowe to a friend in Los Angeles, without thought of publication. The letter having come to the attention of the Editor of THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS, he feels that it would be doing an injustice to the Church to fail to make the facts contained in it known as widely as possible.

I MAGINE my surprise at Fairbanks, where I looked for no letters, to receive yours of August 26th, 1903.

You should see the envelope. It is covered with addresses—from Sitka to St. Michael; from St. Michael to Sitka; from Sitka to Tanana; then Fort Yukon, Circle City, and lastly Fairbanks, where it caught me just six months after it was written. I had not time to answer it while in Fairbanks and so packed it 500 miles, from Fairbanks to Valdez, over the limitless reaches of unbroken ice and snow, up and down rivers known and unknown, across mountain ranges and glaciers, through howling winds and Arctic colds, until finally I reached here, the first apology of civilization, so that here I have it to read again and here it lies before me as I write.

I can never give the Auxiliary of Los Angeles credit enough for all that they have done, and are doing, for Alaska. But believe me that I appreciate it down to the bottom of my heart.

I am sorry that I cannot hope to attend the Missionary Conference in Los Angeles. This long journey of the past winter has left its marks upon me, and now I must first seek some place to undergo treatment and at the same time get a few weeks' rest.

It would be impossible, within the limits of a letter, to tell you of my trip, but I will attempt a brief outline of it. From Circle City I headed across the country for Fairbanks. The distance is 200 miles. I started January 25th and reached Fairbanks February 4th, having spent three days on the way visiting men working on the creeks. On this journey we had four mountain ranges and summits to cross. Just imagine climbing up a summit 5,000 feet high—the dogs hauling a sled with about 400 pounds—and in places steeper than the roof of a house. At such places I had to help the dogs by hauling on a rope fastened to the sled, and then keep yelling at the dogs. We could only make a few feet at a time, and then my breath would be gone. But the view from the top was grand, especially that of the third, the "Cleary Summit." From this height we could look far away to the west. Across the great Tanana valley and beyond the Tanana River there stood up Mt. McKinley, the highest peak of the continent; while ranges of mountains with jagged, snow-capped peaks were strung out in all directions. Then near us, on every hand, there seemed a perfect sea of mountain peaks, while deep canyons and creeks ran out from them toward the Tanana valley.

We made our way up and down canyons, rivers and ravines, deep, dark, tree-lined, that were often most beautiful, but as yet unknown on our maps.

Of course we had our difficulties. Many of these places are glacial, so that we would be startled with cannon-like reports from the bursting of the ice by imprisoned waters, and this water would flow over the ice; and so we had to fight our way through and around the same as best we could.

I reached Fairbanks February 4th. Here was a log cabin town over a year old. It had had no religious services. Many of the inhabitants I knew. They gave me a warm welcome. Though you could not buy food, yet they entertained me; gave me a reception and felt that my coming had removed some sort of a reflection because they were a community without any religious representation. The services were the soul of enthusiasm—an inspiration. I soon showed that I had had them in my thoughts—established a mission, the first and only one in the place—met them half way in their need of a hospital. They secured me the ground for sites—pledged two-thirds of the expense of a building. So I left them rejoiced in the fact that they were to have a mission and a hospital. The Rev. Mr. Huhn is there now from Rampart. The hospital is to be built by June. Then I shall equip it and send in two women as nurses. They also asked me to try and get them a library. All this work I shall try to carry out, depending on my friends everywhere to help me.

I staid at Fairbanks long enough to get my nose and fingers and toes healed from frost bites and then started for Valdez. It meant a journey of nearly 500 miles through an unpeopled, untravelled region. People in Fairbanks said that it was perilous—that I could not make it. And surely I found it terrific. The snow was deep, and I had to break a trail through it most of the way. Day by day and hour by hour I trudged on snowshoes, the dogs following with the "crunch," "crunch" of the snowshoe. It was so bad that when, after three days, I ran across some Indians, I hired one to help me. These Indians knew me, and were so glad to see me. They were so miserable from hunger that I shared some of my food with them. It cost me $100 to do this and have the Indian help me break trail. We encountered a "cold wave." It must have been 70° below zero. Fortunately I did not know certainly, or I would not have travelled. The poor dogs were reluctant to face it—held up their feet, for they were so cold, and I found afterward that they had frozen them. But I "mushed" on daily, camping at night as Indians do, but suffering from cold all the same. I froze my face and hands some. This went on for twelve days; then food began to get scarce. So one night I had the Indian shoot three dogs. We could not feed them longer.

Finally I got in a region of mountains and glaciers utterly bewildering. It was near here that a mail-carrier, going the other way, and about the same time, one reputed to know the country, lost his course, and had it not been for meeting some Indians he and his dogs would have perished from hunger.

But I kept my course all right. Only my food finally failed, and for three days dogs and myself were without any. However, I finally hit "Copper River," a "mail cabin," and there got food; and oh, how good the bread tasted! How I did eat!

Then two days before I reached Valdez I had the great Coast Range of mountains to cross, and here a blizzard caught me. I thought that it was all up with me; but I stuck to it, though I felt that I was freezing, and finally began the descent to the seaside and to safety. No wonder, after all, was it—that my friends here failed to recognize me. My face was drawn and strained, my clothes nearly worn out, while I had an insatiable appetite for two weeks or more. Since then I have been much on my back. My face and hands show the conflict with the cold and storms. But my shoulder gives me the greatest trouble—the pain being such that I cannot sleep. I must confess to having fallen down a mountain-side early last winter and hurting myself. Since then, cold and exposure have aggravated the weaker spots and now, for the first time in my experience, I am a little dependent on my friends. In spite of all fatigue, I feel that the joy of the work I was able to do amply justified it.

[Since this letter was written, Bishop Rowe has spent a week in California, endeavoring to recuperate, and, by the time these words are read, will have returned to Alaska. He plans to meet the Rev. A. R. Hoare, who is returning to the field, either at Sitka or Ketchikan early in June. He will also meet, probably at Sitka, Mr. Edward J. Knapp, who is on his way to Point Hope to take Dr. Driggs's place during the latter's furlough.

Bishop Rowe's brief rest has helped toward the restoration of his health and strength; but it is evident, from what his friends say about him, that he has not entirely recovered from the strain of his hard journey last winter.—THE EDITOR.]

A Letter about "Letters from a Chinese Official"

FROM THE BISHOP OF SHANGHAI TO A FRIEND IN THE UNITED STATES

My dear Gordon:

YOU were good enough to send me a copy of a little book called Letters from a Chinese Official,* and to ask me to read it. You tell me that it is attracting a good deal of attention, and being read by "a certain element of people within the Church who are inclined to think that perhaps Confucianism and Buddhism are better for China than Christianity," and you want me to tell you my opinion of it—I suppose because I have been so long in China. I had not time to do more than promise that I would do so when the mail came in, but this morning I took up the book and read it through—it is not a long task—and before this mail goes I will try to give you my impressions of it.

But, in the first place, you must not think that the book is to be taken too seriously, or that the consequences it is producing, according to your observation, upon a certain set of people, are either surprising or very disquieting. People at home seem always to be enjoying the sensation of a new religion. They have tried Buddhism and had some experience of the subtle Hindu; when I was last at home it was Babism, I believe; and why should Confucius not have a chance? He is certainly far more respectable than the others, quite safe and steady, when we compare him with many of the religious extravagances that have their origin on American soil. Our good friends who admire the book have no intention whatever of adopting any eastern religion as a creed to live by, but they like to play with them all in turn, and perhaps take pleasure in teasing those of us who see things a little more seriously. The net result will probably be a residuum of information about eastern religions which will widen their mental horizon. You see, one has to see Oriental creeds in action, and what the issue of them is in life, to feel perfectly sure of one's faith. Asiatics do not tell the truth; and, after some years of experience of oriental deception, one begins to see the value of a faith that makes men tell the truth themselves and value it in others. I have a theory, by the way, that our science would never have been possible, resting as it does on our faith in the observations of other men, if Christianity had not first taught us the lesson of bearing true witness.

The "Letters" deal somewhat with a comparison of Confucianism with Christianity. You would hardly expect me to argue the question seriously. The question should be discussed gravely, but not in answer to such a presentment of the case as is given us here. Nor would I venture to try to warn those who, so you say, are taken with what the writer says. They are not to be taken seriously, either. I think you may safely trust to the fickleness of the American public to preserve us from any serious danger from this quarter. One impression effaces another with them very quickly. It was only five or six years ago that they proposed to erect a triumphal arch in memory of the battle of Manila Bay, and now, I believe, no one names the latest thing in collars or neckties the "Dewey." They will forget all about it very soon, as they do with missionary appeals, which do no harm at the time, and are forgotten before next Sunday.

Now, when you sent me these "Letters" you surely did not mean that I should accept them as written by a Chinese official. One's credulity has limits even in the East, the land of wonders. It is not only that the English style is too good and the thought too deep in places, but a hundred touches and a dozen slips betray that the author is not a Chinese. It is always unsafe to hazard a universal negative, but I feel pretty confident in this case. For instance, take his description of Chinese country houses as "modest, cheerful and clean." Modest, if you will, but whoever saw a Chinese farmhouse that was either cheerful or clean? Often built of mud and thatched with straw, with a floor of earth, smoky and dusty within, and with a hole in the wall for a window, they answer not at all to the description this writer has given. Oh, yes, they have sometimes walls of brick and a tiled roof; but these are only a little better than the others.

And then, there is the picture of rural life which seems so attractive to a city dweller like yourself—"hills" waving green with cotton and rice, sugar, oranges and tea." The crops seem rather mixed, and all the cotton I have ever seen was grown on the level; but China is a large place, and perhaps this combination exists in the south; if so, what a fairyland it must be! The description flows on, painting very prettily a landscape with silver brooks of water, "which in a thousand bright cascades, plashing in cisterns, chuckling in pipes, soaking and oozing in the soil, distribute freely to all alike fertility, verdure and life." I haven't seen just all of that, but I have seen it oozing and soaking in the soil, and walked through it sometimes, too. China is a great place for all sorts of "oozing and soaking."

Then it is the turn of the hills, which are of course covered "with a mantle of azure and gold and rose, gardenia, clematis, azalea, growing luxuriantly wild." This, too, may be the picture of some fair corner; it certainly does not apply to the barren hills, denuded of trees and even of bushes, the monotonous levels and reedy marshes which stretch along the Yang-tse, nor to the dry and dusty plains of North China. Architecture, too, adds its charm to this imaginary landscape. In the distance "glitters out over a clump of trees the gold enamel of some tall pagoda." Now, most pagodas are out of repair, and have bushes growing out of their tops and sides. It is only the best that are whitewashed, and as to "gold enamel" one would make a long journey to see that. It is a religious and devout population, it seems, which resides about this gold enamelled pagoda, for "at evening and dawn" comes "the sound of gongs summoning to worship from the temples in the valley." And so the words flow on most pleasantly, from point to point, and find at length their ending in a climax: "Such silence! Such sounds! Such perfume! Such color!" Far be it from me to belittle the beauty of the Chinese landscape; but why did he not leave out that about the perfume? Why, you can smell China out at sea! However, it is just as easy to imagine the perfume as the rest of it, while you are writing. You will wonder why I am running on so about a minor point like this of Chinese landscape and farmhouses. It is to illustrate the exaggeration which is the most conspicuous note of these "Letters." Anyone who has not seen China can test whether this book is true to fact by comparing it with any narrative of sober travel, and if he happens to live in China, his own nose and eyes are a sufficient witness; but in that case what happens to the color and the perfume and the gold enamelled pagoda? One fears they must go. Your own observation has fastened on this quality of exaggeration. It is inseparable from the motive and the method of the book. These "Letters" are not a sober comparison of China and the West by an Oriental; they are simply the old questions which the papers discuss at home, in a dress which is new. Labor and capital, the ideal and the material in civilization, commerce and art and the different spirit they engender, you know them well enough not to be deceived by the blue silk gown and the queue. Under those horn spectacles I will wager you will find a pair of blue eyes. Did I say that the form was new? Well, it is at least as old as Tacitus. Did not the great historian write the "Germania" and draw in it a picture of the decay of Roman morals and institutions, of the tyranny of the State and the degeneracy of the people, and then set over against it the simplicity and justice, the bravery and chastity of the Germans, who abhorred trade and dwelt in the fields and forests close to the heart of Nature? And did not Voltaire, too, point to the glories of China to put to shame the decadence of French civilization? The method is neat and effective, for not one in ten thousand can contradict your assertions. But that China should serve anyone in these days as the promised land!

The writer takes the worst of our morals, the weakest of our religion, the most debasing of our industrial conditions, the most pernicious of our vices, and against them he sets, not the best that China can show, but an exaggerated picture which is false to fact. This is not argument but trickery, because it presumes on the fact that one's readers will know no better. One could forgive it if the picture were not so radically false.

Here one lives in a nation where beggary is, one may almost say, a national institution, and where you can see beggars in the death agony by the side of the street, as I have; and he reproaches us with our almshouses! Poverty is here so dire that a large portion of the population lives from hand to mouth, and in time of famine dies of starvation; and he tells us how much happier the laborer is in China. One would like to ask him in this connection why it is that in famine time China gets help from the West to keep her people alive, and how it is that the Chinese officials cannot be trusted to distribute the famine funds? In this land competition is fierce and unsparing, and the dollar is worshipped as devoutly as anywhere in the world; yet he would have us believe that "they do not care to amass wealth" and that "among such a people there is no room for fierce and indecent rivalries." If the Chinaman is known for anything, it is for being a shrewd trader; but he tells us that they do not care for trade. Did anyone ever know a Chinaman work with his hands when he could buy and sell?

The book is simply an attack upon western civilization, and China has very little to do with it. It is the misstatement and exaggeration which are annoying. Let us state the very best that China or all Asia can offer, freely and fairly, and we may well be content to let people take their choice, whether they will have the life of the West with its struggles, but also with its energy and freedom, or the dead and decaying civilization of the East.

My letter has run to a great length, and I am not going (so close to the closing of the mail) to spin it out any longer or to argue the point for civilization and Christianity. If I am right in my judgment of the motive and method of the book, it does not need dissection, for we are not dealing with the statements of a patriotic Chinese, but with one of ourselves, who is sick of pretended culture and of the evils of industrial civilization, and who has made these letters on China the vehicle to convey the lesson he would read us.

And now, at the end of my letter, I come to find myself in agreement in a larger measure than I thought would be possible with the aim of the writer. He doesn't like missionaries, it is plain; but he seems to be a missionary of sorts, himself, for he is striking at the evils that assail our national life to-day. He is, in fact, fighting for the ideal, and for what is right and true, and hates the thought that material progress is the end of all, and that money is the measure of all things. I find myself in sympathy with him there. Every time I come back to the United States the thought which comes first and stays longest is that of the enormous increase of wealth and luxury. The old simple life in which Americans used to take pride is vanishing, or has vanished, and one feels that it is not good for a people to be so oppressed by material things as we are now. Surely, it must be bad for character, this worship of money and success and material comfort. I wonder if it is for that reason that all the hospitals in New York are short of funds, as you tell me they are? If that is so, prosperity is making the Americans selfish.

How odd, is it not, to begin by differing with the unknown writer and then to find that he means the same thing as the missionary does in his way? I suppose it is because missions mean the attempt to realize the higher life, and to secure the empire of the unseen over the low and material. In so far as our "Chinese Official" (let him keep the disguise) is striving for these things, one agrees with him; but the way to this end does not lie through China, nor can Confucius be our guide.

Faithfully yours,

FREDERICK R. GRAVES.

Native Nurses in the Philippines

THROUGH some inadvertence, Dr. Radcliffe Johnson, our missionary physician in Manila, was made to say in an article in the January number that the training of native women as nurses in our hospital work had already begun. Dr. Johnson is anxious, with the assistance of American trained nurses, to undertake the training of some Filipino assistants. He had hoped to be able to do this months ago, but the lack of sufficient funds has prevented the addition to the dispensary in Manila of the small tent ward which would have made the training of native nurses a possibility. Probably about $500 would be sufficient to make possible the beginning of this work.

A Lay-Missionary for the Philippines

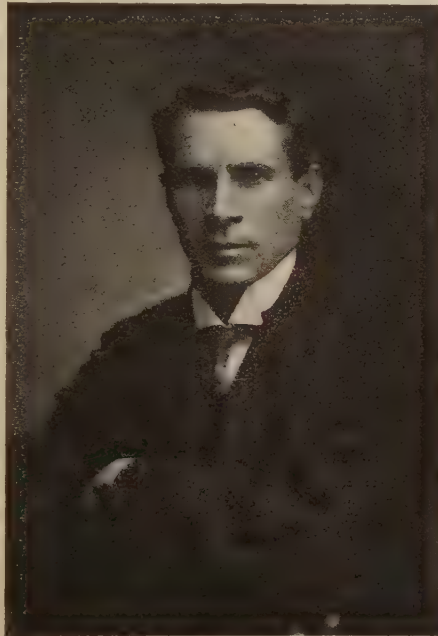

ON May 9th Mr. James H. T. Mackenzie sailed from San Francisco to join Bishop Brent's staff in the Philippines, as a lay-worker. Mr. Mackenzie is of English birth, and was educated in English schools, but has been in this country for several years, holding business positions in Toledo, O., and Birmingham, Ala. In Toledo he was in the parish of the Rev. Walter C. Clapp, our missionary at Bontoc, who came to know and depend upon him as a faithful Churchman and loyal helper. The record Mr. Mackenzie made in Toledo as a Brotherhood of St. Andrew man, Sunday-school teacher and a lay-reader led Mr. Clapp to suggest him to Bishop Brent as one who might be associated with the work at Bontoc, which the Bishop promises will be "hard and lonely." "The only reward attached to it will be that which comes from the hand of our Lord to His servants who serve Him and minister to His needy servants." During his residence in Birmingham, Mr. Mackenzie was one of the working members of Advent parish.

The Rev. John G. Murray, under whom he worked for five years, says of him: "During the entire time, no man of my acquaintance was more regular in his attendance upon every service of the Church, more devout in his worship, more liberal (according to his means) in his offerings, especially in connection with everything pertaining to missions, more efficient in Sunday-school work, or more faithful in his devotion to the interests of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew. He was director of the junior chapter of my parish until I left Birmingham. In addition to this work and faithfulness in the Church, he lived the Christian life in the world, standing high in the estimation of his employers. He has the traits of punctuality, patience and perseverance, in a marked degree. The idea of service dominates his life, and, unlike many consecrated men, he is always willing to learn."

MR. JAMES H. T. MACKENZIE

Mr. Mackenzie is a nephew of the late Bishop Mackenzie, of Zanzibar, one of the great pioneer bishops of the English Church in Africa and for several years the leader of the Universities' Mission to Central Africa.

LAST month the Treasurer received the final payment of $25,000 from the anonymous donor who has given $100,000 for the erection of the Manila Cathedral.

ONE OF PONCE'S BUSY STREETS

Some Porto Rican Needs and Achievements

I HAD intended to rise at four-thirty, in order to take the usual coffee and eggs before starting on the fourteen-hour ride from San Juan to Ponce. But I did not awake until five-twenty, and as I was obliged to leave the house at ten minutes before six, in order to catch my train, it was necessary to make a few crackers and an orange do duty as breakfast. It was nearly ten o'clock when the dusty little train reached Camuy, the terminus of the railroad on the north shore, and west from San Juan about sixty miles. By that time my head was aching pretty badly, but a good cup of coffee and some eggs put a stop to all that.

At Camuy I took the mail coach, which is not so imposing a vehicle as its name would imply, and reached Aguadilla at two o'clock, after a twenty-five mile ride over a fairly good road.

At Aguadilla I took the train again, and rattled over eighty miles to Ponce, the road winding along much of the way by the rocky coast of the western end of the island. Here the surf breaks in beautiful crests on the rocks and reefs; there the long lines of snowy foam roll up the level sands. Now the road turns inland, and climbs a steep grade, curving around the hills, slowly ascending, until one looks down some deep ravine, and sees the sugar-cane fields tossing their long plumes, far below, while on the hillside across the valley, palms and bananas, tobacco and pineapples make up a picture of ever-changing beauty, with here and there the yellow gleam of oranges breaking through the greenwood.

It was the Feast of the Annunciation, and when I reached Ponce, Mr. Watson was in the church, preparing for the Palm Sunday services. It was nearly eight o'clock in the evening, and I was more grateful for the quiet rest of the rectory than for the bountiful provision that awaited me at the hotel, near by, where Mr. Watson takes his meals.

We sat and talked over parish affairs, until late that evening. Bright and early Saturday morning one of the lay-readers, Mr. Read, who is helping Mr. Watson, came to the rectory, and I had a long talk with him on the subject of his becoming a candidate for Holy Orders. Mr. Wells, the other lay-reader, came in afterward, and as he is a vestryman we talked about the outlook of the parish. I found that the people were much disturbed for fear it would be necessary for Mr. Watson to give up the work, on account of his throat, which has been, and still is, in a very bad condition, owing to excessive use of his voice before he came to Porto Rico.

And, in this connection, it seems that the only way to keep Mr. Watson here will be to make this an associate mission, have one or two more clergymen come here, and let him administer the work without using his voice for a while. There is work enough for three, if we can develop the two or three places, now utterly neglected, in this vicinity. Mr. Horton, a colored man, is desirous of taking deacon's orders. I had a good talk with him, and he will be admitted as a candidate soon.

In the afternoon I made a thorough examination of the church building, to see what must be done in order to keep a roof over the heads of the people. I found the wooden walls, with their outer casing of corrugated iron, in some places quite out of the perpendicular, the timbers badly worm-eaten and decayed, and the floor sadly uneven. The roof leaks so that, when it rains, service is carried on with great discomfort, and the water stands in pools in the sanctuary and other places.

One or the other of two courses will have to be adopted. Either we must build a good church here, which will cost some $10,000, or else we must take down the old building and restore it. This would cost probably half that sum, and would give us only a poor building, in the very place where we stand face to face with a communion which has built great, imposing churches, having every appearance of permanence and strength. Between these alternatives, I have no hesitation in choosing the former. It does not suit my ideas of the Church, that we should be at a great disadvantage in the comparison with Rome. Nor can I feel satisfied with having, by the grace of God and the help of generous friends in the homeland, put a good church in San Juan. The next thing is a new church for Ponce. The present one, made of frame and iron, torn and twisted by the hurricanes, restored as well as the circumstances would permit, is now thirty-one years old, and cannot stand much longer. If it were not bound together by iron rods, it would fall apart, and it is liable to blow down in a high wind. I think it is not worth what it would cost to stop the leaks. Something must be done soon, and I propose to invite the Church in the States, this next summer, to help me do the right thing. In other words, I must have $10,000 for a new church in Ponce. I have as yet received only a little over $16,000 of the $30,000 Equipment Fund I have been asking for, yet see what has been accomplished. A new church has been finished, and is in use in San Juan; an episcopal residence is finished and occupied; a mission at Puerta de Tierra has been opened; needed repairs have been made on the old church at Vieques. See what has been done with the $3,900 from the United Offering of the Woman's Auxiliary. A rectory has been acquired at Ponce, and the school at San Juan has been furnished and equipped for 100 children. And, by the way, the basement of the San Juan church is now being prepared for the opening of the school, after the Easter recess.

But to return to Ponce. Mr. Watson has opened a mission at the Playa, or seaside, fitted up a room there, and one of the lay-readers holds service every Wednesday evening. It has been the means of bringing some candidates to confirmation, while some of the communicants walk all the way from there to Ponce, two miles, to attend the services and receive the communion in the parish church.

On Sunday, March 27th, Mr. Watson took the first celebration, at seven o'clock. I took the second at eight, and at ten-thirty I officiated and preached, being assisted by Mr. Wells and Mr. Read, Mr. Watson taking charge of the organ. The church was beautifully decked with royal palms and other plants and flowers. At seven-forty-five we had the choral evensong with sermon and confirmation. There were twenty-one in the confirmation class. The church was filled at both services, there being many at the evening service who were obliged to stand.

Monday morning, just as the sun was rising, I started on my way home, arriving at about eight at night, following the same route as the going journey. I think that it is less fatiguing to go that way than to take the long drive over the military road, although it is considerably longer in distance, and about the same in time.

There is a great opportunity for Spanish work in Ponce. Mr. Watson has conciliated that element in the community, and they, like everybody else with whom I talked, are very much attached to him. It would not take long to learn enough Spanish to conduct the services in that tongue, and whoever comes to the work must make the study of the language a part of his duty. A woman helper would be of great service, and I am in hopes that one will soon be appointed.

Representative ministers of the Presbyterian, Methodist and Lutheran denominations were seated in the choir, and spoke kind words of neighborly felicitation. I was glad of an opportunity to show some return for the many courtesies I have received from them.

But our friends at home should have seen us Easter Day! The church was

Juan, and of the new episcopal residence, some six miles from the city, have reached me, and I send them along hoping they will interest the readers of THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS. The pictures speak for themselves, and I think all who see them will agree with the statement of a visitor, the other day, that the buildings are worthy to represent our great communion, in this part of the new possessions. The church was occupied by the congregation for the first time, on Sunday, March 20th. On the following Wednesday, we had an informal opening ser-packed to the doors, the music was excellent, the chancel was decked with a profusion of flowers, as the eloquent reporters are wont to say, and we kept the feast!

The Bishop and his wife gave a reception at the episcopal residence April 20th. As the readers of this magazine look at our home in the midst of its tropical foliage, what would they think if they knew that the photograph was taken March 24th. How we have pitied our poor, shivering friends at the North during the inclement winter, when thermometers were ranging from ten to forty below!

It is a pity to have to leave so comfortable a home, but making a visitation to Cuba in May, I must come to the States to try to raise money during the summer. We expect to rent the house during our absence. Oh, for the time when it will not be necessary to leave my proper work in order to obtain the funds necessary to carry it forward! Possibly, some of the people who have been waiting will be moved to help on that day, according to the blessings God has given them in the homes and churches they love, when they see what has been accomplished here, along those lines.

It has been a blessed year of activity for us here. We are thankful to God for the privilege of such a year, thankful to all who have helped to make these pictures possible, and determined, by the help of God and the friends of Porto Rico, to make good use of the resources entrusted to us.

A China New Year Incident

BY THE REVEREND R. E. WOOD

THE RELIGIOUS OBSERVANCE OF NEW YEAR'S DAY—ITS SOCIAL ASPECTS—HOW THE NATIVE CHRISTIANS ARE TAUGHT TO OBSERVE IT—WHY SOME CHINAMEN WANTED A PICTURE OF ABRAHAM

UNLIKE our American New Year's Day, China New Year is a movable feast, being determined by the phases of the moon. This year, it fell on Shrove Tuesday. It is a time of many festivities, religious and social. Dr. Arthur Smith, in his book on Village Life in China, speaking of the religious rites connected with the observance, says:

"The very first aspect in which Chinese New Year presents itself, no matter in what part of the world we happen to meet it, is that of noise. All night long, there is a bang! bang! bang! of fire-crackers large and small, which, like other calamities, 'come, not single spies, but in battalions.' The root of all this is undoubtedly connected with religion, as in other similar performances all over the world. But though the explosion of gunpowder is the most prominent, it is far from being the most important act of New Year worship. There is the despatch of the last year's kitchen-god, generally on the twenty-third of the twelfth moon, and the installation of his successor at the close of the year. On the last evening of the year, there is the family gathering, either at the ancestral temple or, should there not be one, in the dwelling house, for the worship of the tablets of the past few generations of ancestors. In some parts of China ancestral tablets are comparatively rare among the farming and working people, and the place of them, as regards the practical worship at New Year's Eve, is taken by a large scroll, containing a portion of the family genealogy, which is hung up and honored with prostrations and the burning of incense. On the morning of the second day of the new first moon, perhaps at other times also, all the males of a suitable age go to the family or clan graveyard, and there make the customary offerings to the spirits of the departed. There has been considerable controversy among foreigners expert in Chinese affairs as to the true value of these various rites from a religious point of view; but there is no doubt on the part of anyone that they constitute a most essential ingredient in a Chinese New Year; and that, in the present temper of the Chinese race, a New Year without such rites is both inconceivable and impossible."

However important the religious ceremonies may be considered, they are soon disposed of once for all. The social ceremonies, however, which have to do with the living, are more lengthy and complicated. They often require rising long before daylight.

"After the family salutations have been concluded," Dr. Smith continues, "all but the older generation of males set out to make the tour of the village, the representatives of each family entering the yard of every other family, and prostrating themselves to the elders, who are at home to receive them. This business goes by priority in the genealogical table, as military and naval officers take rank from the date of their commissions. Early marriages on the part of some members of a collateral branch of a large clan, late marriages on the part of other branches, the adoption of heirs at any point, and other causes, constantly bring it about that the men oldest in years are by no means so in the order of the generation to which they belong. Thus we have the absurd spectacle of a man of seventy posing as a 'nephew'—or, if worst comes to worst—as the 'grandson' of a mere boy. One often hears a man in middle life complain of the fatigue of the New Year time, as he, being of a 'late generation,' is obliged 'to kotow to every child two feet long' whom he may happen to meet, as they are 'older' than he, and in consequence of this inversion of 'relative duties,' the children are fresh as a rose, while the middle-aged man has lame knees for a week or two!"

The social observance may be extended over several days, and during the period it is almost impossible to persuade any Chinaman to give his attention to anything so usual as every-day work and duties.

With these festivities coming as they did this year, so close to Lent, it was hard to keep the importance of the Church's holy season clearly before the minds of the people.

We began with a midnight celebration of the Holy Eucharist at St. Saviour's, preceded by a service of self-examination and preparation. It was a union service for our four Wuchang stations. Next morning, before I was up, the callers began to come, and I stayed in most of the day to receive them.

One group of callers consisted of four or five new converts from St. Andrew's Chapel, which, since Mr. Littell's removal to Hankow, has been put in my charge. They stayed some time, and finally one of them spoke for all and said, "Mr. Wood, will you please give us some pictures of Abraham?" I thought I understood what they meant, because I had just sent a series of Bible pictures to St. Andrew's, illustrating the Passion of our Lord, and along with them one of Abraham with Isaac carrying the wood of the burnt sacrifice. So I thought: "These men only mention Abraham because they have seen that colored picture and they like it. I have some Old Testament pictures, but they are in complete sets, and I do not want to spoil them; I will give each one an odd picture, and I know they will be just as well satisfied." So I looked over my stock and brought out a fine one of St. Paul making tents, one of the conversion of the Philippian jailor, etc. But, to my surprise, they did not want them at all. They only wanted "Abraham." I asked them why, and the reply was: "Abraham is our father, isn't he? Now that we have become Christians we have taken down the tablet to our ancestors, and we want Abraham to put up in the place of it. If we have nothing, our heathen neighbors will say evil things of us, and if we put up a cross they will say that that is our idol, so we want Abraham to take the place of our ancestors."

This speech overcame my unwillingness to break my set of Old Testament pictures. I did not have enough of Abraham, however, to go around, but one or two of them took Noah, and were just as well satisfied. They said, "He, too, is our father." This instance of the way the Chinese look at things may help our friends at home to understand one phase of the local conditions in the mission field.

On the Old California Trail in Laramie

BY THE REVEREND G. B. CLARKE

THE old "California Trail" runs through the jurisdiction of Laramie, following the line of march up the North Platte Valley to the west, made by Lewis and Clarke, Fremont, "the forty-niners" and Mormons. This valley, which is my parish, is 200 miles long and extends into Wyoming. The Platte River runs through it, fed by the mountain snows of Colorado and Wyoming. Mark Twain said it was the widest and shallowest river in the world. He must have seen it during the June flood, for ordinarily it is a large expanse of sand-bars with numerous narrow streams, and often one can cross it on foot without danger of a wetting. Sand bluffs flank the valley on either side. In the distance they resemble mountains of granite, broken into castles and towers, suggestive of the Rhine.

The old trail is still visible, a landmark of peril and privation, for it was a part of the "Great American Desert" of our boyhood geography, where roaming bands of Sioux held carnival, and herds of buffalo covered the plain. To-day the Episcopal Church is striving for a foothold here. It means more than one in the East can imagine when the Church, with her order, reverence and reasonableness, is set in the midst of this developing life in the formative period of its growth. There are always perils in transition from a limited condition socially to one of greater freedom and independence. The first temptation is to abuse opportunity and abandon conventionality in the license of non-constraint.

Cattle grazing is the chief occupation of the people. The native grass drying on the sod does not require much moisture. As a class the people have not been reached by our Church in the locality from which they have emigrated. They are scattered in isolated homes all over the prairies. Some large ranch holdings, owned by non-resident capitalists, are run by foremen and

"cow-punchers"; but the majority live on their own homesteads, trying to be cattle men on a small scale with limited capital, utilizing in addition the unoccupied Government land. Since the railroad came, four years ago, a dozen towns have sprung up along the line at intervals of about twenty miles. We now hold some kind of service in all of them.

Formerly Bishop Graves was the only missionary of the Church who came here, moving about like an apostle of light, carrying cheer and good-will to the scattered homes. The changes during his episcopate have been marvellous. When he came, in 1890, the first settlers had just taken up their homesteads where but recently the Indians and buffaloes had reigned supreme. A four years' drought forced the people, who had been trying to be farmers, to vacate the country; and that exodus is one of the thrilling events in the history of Nebraska. Soon, however, another type from the south and middle west took up these abandoned claims. They concluded that as buffalo had been sustained by the native grasses, domestic cattle might find grazing grounds. The result of their experiments has shown their wisdom. When the railroad was extended through the valley in 1900, the present missionary was sent on the first train like a "knight of the plain," to catch and shepherd the human wanderers. If the people had only been as religious as they were good-hearted, the task would have been easy; but, as Phillips Brooks once said, one must not seek easy things, but strength to do great things.

All over the West, and here especially, the atmosphere is that of a camp. Restlessness and change predominate, while responsibility to fixed ideas is lacking. Novelty is attractive, and that discounts stability of purpose. Besides, the Church idea was new to them. Hearing a sermon and singing "Gospel hymns" was their limit of worship, but it had to serve as a starter, and a "Piscopal" stood as good a chance with them as any other. They are not theologians, although all sorts of "opinions and ideas" are rife with them.

It had been written that if Rome had had to teach the world Latin before she conquered it the victory would never have been won. We do get the people and are never lacking in good congregations, although our services must come on the busy week-day. Slowly the Christian year and the sacraments,

Come with me to the dimly lighted school-house, where the congregation is assembled. Many have driven in from a long distance in the country, and they are crowded into the uncomfortable school-house seats, waiting for the service. Watch the glow of the expectant faces—for they are all our friends and glad to see us, but our family ways are contrary to their fixed habits. "Getting up and sitting down" is perhaps neither convenient nor agreeable. No one can reverence and dignity in worship are winning, as our large confirmation classes testify. Once, at a Fourth of July celebration, an imported orator asked to what denomination I belonged. He was astonished when I told him.

"What, the Episcopal Church here?"

"Why not?" I said.

He replied, "Because it is always found on the crest of civilization."

I asked him if he had never heard of High and Low Church.

"Yes."

"Well," I said, "that means it is on the top and at the bottom, too."

sing the chants, or play them. Some cannot read; others have left their glasses at home or are too indifferent to bestir themselves. The old, familiar hymns must do and an abbreviated service. You can say what you wish in the sermon, but it must have the old Gospel ring. If they like it, they will tell you so, and come again. Some day they will come to stay. As soon as a mission is started "The Guild" is organized. It may have but two or three members, but as church affiliation is not necessary to membership we soon gather others. Provided there is a sufficient number of any one class or set, and not too much talking, all goes well with it, and it has performed miracles in this western land. It is not long before some are ready to throw in their influence with us and come to the confirmation class. For the others, and the larger number, we must still hold courtesy and respect. Although not of us, they are living up to all the light and truth they have, and this brings a blessing where something else might bring defeat.

I have built seven churches and two rectories in ten years. They represent an outlay of $12,000. One-half of this money came from the people themselves, either in subscriptions or as the proceeds of sales and sociables. The other half was begged for, right and left. One must have faith in God and faith in himself to persist in such an undertaking.

Four of these churches have been named for St. Margaret. I commend this name to any poor mission struggling to build a church. For some reason or other, it has been a most fortunate selection. Gifts and donations have come more easily and freely for the "St. Margaret's" than for any other work that I have accomplished, while one poor little mission of another name, quite generally used in our Church, still needs the essentials of a decent worship, and that in spite of appeals where something could have been done if the will was ready. I am to build, perhaps, my last church this summer at Gering, where the Bishop has worked for fourteen years amid many trying circumstances. It will be called St. Alban's, in consideration for some faithful English settlers who never miss a service, and drive thirty-six miles to do it. I call it my last, but I have said that before; and then the vision comes of what can be done, and some one pats me on the shoulder, and before I know it I am begging again, and worried and vexed over the details attending the work. The local people have given one-half of the $800 needed, and I shall have to work hard for the other $400. While the Bishop tells me to build, he adds, "But avoid debt as you would poison." Some of our members have never seen an Episcopal church, and a font would be a novelty indeed. I am sorry to say we have not one in all this territory—that is, a real font. People come to us constantly for baptism, and we use basins, glass dishes or any other receptacles that may be available. In connection with St. Margaret's mission at Bayard, we are fortunate in having a woman, a physician, who is constantly on the go among these scattered homes, ministering to the ills of the body, but who still has some consecrated time for her Church. Like most of the people here, she was not brought up in the Church. She was trained in one of Mr. Moody's schools and ordained as a Congregational minister in Dakota. Twenty-five children constitute the Sunday-school, which she gathers every Lord's Day. On all the special feast days of the Church she opens the chapel after school hours and holds a lay service for all who can come. At Gering another woman physician, formerly connected with the "Campbellite" body, is the "backbone" of the mission. For years she has nursed and doctored, been father and mother, sister and brother, in a most heroic and self-sacrificing manner, travelling miles and miles, night and day in all kinds of weather, to minister to the distress and poverty around her. As I can only visit the many missions outside of Alliance once a month, such help is invaluable. Soon our valley is promised irrigation, and an eastern syndicate stand ready to put into operation a beet-sugar industry with factories. I asked them where they would get the help.

"We shall take Russians and Poles by the scruff of the neck and bring them up here."

Shall the Church give them a welcome in the name of the Lord? My home mission at Alliance furnishes ample work for all my time and energies. It has a shifting population of railroad people. But eight other missions and much work to be developed keep me on the go during the month.

CHILDREN OF HOLY TRINITY ORPHANAGE, OJI

Japan in War Time

BY THE REVEREND THEODOSIUS S. TYNG

THE New York Evening Post, in an interesting article on "The Real Issues of the War," maintains that the contest is essentially one of East against West, the East standing for "a highly interesting life," "a society very humanely organized," "peculiar aptitudes for the graces of life, and for beautiful handicraft," "great uniformity and one established social order," as compared with western "individualism," "a certain fatalism and submissiveness which deprive the universal lot of poverty of its sting, and a real community of ideas which transcends superficial systems of caste, and makes a genuine social democracy;" while the West stands for a "commercial civilization," and the idea that "the destiny of all inferior races is to buy the inferior products of superior races."

This statement, though it does not escape the common fallacy of grouping together, as "Oriental," traits belonging to different countries, and treating them as if they were common to all, contains much truth. There is a Japanese civilization which differs from that of Europe, and has its points of superiority to it, which has affinities in other Oriental forms of civilization, and the loss of which would be a loss to the world. But the idea of Japan as representing the East, against Russia representing the West, contains only a small part of the truth, and is itself only partially true. For Russia represents the West very imperfectly, and Japan stands for much more than Orientalism. In many ways, Japan represents western civilization much more truly than Russia. She stands for widely diffused education and intelligence, as against widespread ignorance. The proportion of people who have some knowledge of modern science, of history, and of the world in which we live, is many fold greater here than in Russia. Japan stands for individual liberty against tyranny. Not even in France and Germany is the citizen so free from official interference as here in Japan. She stands for law as administered by an independent judiciary, against the control of liberty and life by arbitrary power. She stands for constitutional and representative government against autocracy modified by bureaucracy.

Turning from the combatants to the issue, it is altogether untrue to say, as the Evening Post did in an earlier article, that "what we have on either hand is a nation coveting the lands of another, and calling it destiny," that "Japan and Russia are going to war because they cannot agree upon the division of the property of third parties." Russia's policy for generations has indeed been to seize upon any desirable neighboring territory that she could take, and Russify it as completely as possible. But Japan has never had any such policy. It is not yet thirty years since she put down at severe cost the great Satsuma rebellion, which arose out of the refusal of her Government to attempt the conquest of Korea, though the presence of a strong foreign power in that country has always been regarded as a menace to her safety. She fought with China what her people believed to be a war of self-defence, because China threatened her safety by sending troops into Korea. But when the war ended, and she was compelled to give up Port Arthur, she retired voluntarily from Korea, and acknowledged freely equality of right on Russia's part in that country. Since then Russia, which has always gone steadily on extending her autocratic control wherever she could, has first taken Port Arthur, the possession of which by any other power than China she had declared to be a menace to the peace of the East, then seized Manchuria, and further, through her representatives, has persistently attempted to establish on the shores of Korea, opposite to Japan, fortified posts which would threaten this country and this country alone.

And now, at last, Japan, after exhausting every effort of diplomacy, has entered upon what she believes to be a just war of self-defence. And if war is justifiable at all, who shall say that this war is unjustified? If America were justified in declaring in the Monroe Doctrine that she would not permit any European State to extend its system even to a part of the western hemisphere so remote as South America, then Japan is a hundred fold justified in taking all means for preventing the modern power that, beyond all others, has persistently absorbed neighboring territories, from establishing itself upon her very borders. The question for us is, however, not a question just how far it is necessary for Japan to go in self-defence. That she must decide for herself. Whether or not she could better defend herself by keeping to her islands, and letting Russia sion of many other things, it will also carry them out of themselves, make them more serious, more earnest, more self-forgetful and self-sacrificing. All over the country people are already absorbed in considering how they may assist their country in its struggle, and help the wounded, the sick, the widows and orphans. Officials are surrendering a tenth of their income, rich men are offering their collections of ancient coins and take possession of all the mainland, if she chose, is a question for her own people and Government. What concerns us is that both people and Government believe that they are doing what is necessary for their own safety, and that we at least cannot prove that she is wrong in this belief.

Now comes the question how this war is going to affect mission work. So far as the immediate effect is concerned, I believe that it will increase both our opportunities and our needs. While it will occupy people's minds to the exclu-other treasures, all are practising, or, at least, pretending to practise, simplicity and economy, so that to appear abroad in silk garments is considered a disgrace. All this will tend to make people more ready to think of the most serious things of all. The followers of Buddhism will be more earnest in their worship, as well as the Christians, and the many thousands of intelligent people to whom the old faiths are no longer possible will, in many cases, be more inclined to consider what Christianity may have to offer to satisfy their deeper needs.

Along with these opportunities will come increasing needs. Many of the churches will need help, because the war will have removed some of their members, and impoverished others, while the demands upon their liberality will be far greater than before. The Christian schools will need aid, because their resources will be diminished, and their needs increased. Orphanages and other charitable institutions will probably be among the greatest sufferers, because the Red Cross Society and other societies for the relief of suffering caused by the war will in many cases divert contributions from them.

There are two orphanages connected with our Church work in Osaka—St. John's, and that of the Hakuaisha (Benevolent Society), or "Widely Loving Society," as it has been translated. The latter especially will furnish an excellent illustration of what I mean. To support its seventy children, it needs, besides what they can earn, about $160 a month for its ordinary daily needs, besides other expenses that arise from time to time. A good part of this comes from about a thousand subscribers, who subscribe an average of a few cents monthly.

The number of these during war time is certain to decrease. Another dependence has been the giving of concerts from time to time. This resource will be quite cut off. Yet one certain result of the war will be that there will be more orphans to take care of, and urgent need for the orphanages to increase their capacity and resources.

From all this, it will be quite plain that there is urgent need for large contributions, not only to meet special opportunities for work that may arise, and are already arising, but to keep alive the work that is already in existence, and keep heart in the workers.

And still beyond these immediate needs is the future. If Japan is successful in this struggle, she will be more and more the leader of the East, and to make her more Christian is to strengthen Christian influence where it will be most powerful and tell the most widely. If, on the other hand, she should in the end be defeated, she will herself more than ever need help in spiritual things to counterbalance the material injury that will have been done her by one of the nations of Christendom.

AN ORPHANAGE BOY SELLING MILK FROM THE FARM

Church Students and Missions

THE seventeenth annual report, containing information of the work of the C. S. M. A. during the past year, is now ready for distribution. Copies may be obtained from the Secretary of the Executive Committee, 175 Ninth Avenue, New York.

ON the evening of March 20th, the General Theological Seminary Chapter held the third of its services for the benefit of the C. S. M. A. general fund at St. Michael's Church, New York. The Rev. John Charles Roper, D.D., and Mr. Paul Faudé, B.A., a student of the General Seminary, spoke. Dr. Roper made an appeal for workers in missionary fields, and Mr. Faudé spoke of the history and work of the Association.

THE Seabury Divinity-school Chapter holds a meeting every Friday evening, for the study of Bradner's The Kingdom Growing. Members of the chapter conduct services at the county poor-farm, visit the jail, and hold services at numerous points within fifty miles of Faribault. Most of the men expect to go into mission work when they graduate.

THE Hobart Chapter has become a part of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew. This fact, however, does not seem to have lessened the missionary spirit, for, besides being in charge of seven mission churches and helping at two others, the members have followed out a plan that other chapters may profitably adopt. At a meeting of the chapter, it was suggested that it would be well to bring the subject of foreign and domestic missions before the several missions of which the chapter has charge; and, to further this end, copies of THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS are distributed. The chapter possesses only a few copies, but these are marked "Please read and pass along after one week."

In this way one copy can be read by more than fifty people. As a result, one of these missions is this year contributing $100 to missionary work.

THE committee on the C. S. M. A. report, regret that the report of the Rev. Mr. Huntington, our missionary in China, arrived too late to be inserted in the report. He calls attention to the fact that on ethical and educational lines the Chinese Empire is improving. There are more applicants for schools than can be received. In Mr. Huntington's own field, two new day-schools have been opened. Mr. Huntington reports excellent plans for systematizing and extending the educational work. The evangelistic work has grown steadily. The Church in Shayang has just been finished, and in Hanyang money is being collected for a new church. Chiao-wei is the only place where progress is tardy. At Chinchow, a city of some political importance, a new station has been opened, and of the thirty or forty enquirers six have been admitted catechumens. At Shasi, the new Church of Our Saviour, the largest in the district with the exception of the cathedral at Hankow, has been opened and congregations of about 100 attend. In Ichang the growth has been considerable, and marked interest is shown in such neighboring places. Mr. Huntington has sent to the committee on literature at Hankow his translation of The Practice of the Presence of God. He has also composed a Chinese primer, to be used in day-schools. In his district there are 127 catechumens, 606 baptized church members, two foreign clergy, two Chinese clergy, six catechists and six teachers.

THE chapter at Bishops' College, Lennoxville, Quebec, has had a prosperous year. Weekly intercessions for domestic and foreign missions, monthly corporate Communion, and monthly missionary meetings, at which papers are read, are features of the missionary life.

MEMBERS of the Missionary Society of the Philadelphia Divinity-school have canvassed a section of the city preparatory to the building of a new mission church. The mission is to be known as the Church of the Reconciliation, and on its altar will be a memorial cross presented by the Missionary Association of this school. The society has also volunteered to take charge of the services at the Galilee Rescue Mission the first and third Thursday nights of each month. Ten dollars each has been sent to the work of the Rev. Mr. Littell, in China; the Rev. W. Taylor Douglass, among the Hupa Indians in California, and to the Church in Phoenix, Ariz. Recent speakers before the society have been Bishops Hare, Hall and Whitehead; the Messrs. Moore, Paddock and Douglass.

Ponce Notes

MR. WATSON, our missionary at Ponce, Porto Rico, says that the Easter services at Holy Trinity Church were beautiful and inspiring. Forty-two people came to the early celebration of the Holy Communion. At the mid-day service the church was full, with 125 people, and again at night, with 150.

"Just before the mid-day service," Mr. Watson continues, "I had a wedding, and a curious one it was. All of the groom's hair had fallen off his head and grew in two great bunches on his cheeks. The bride was gaily attired and had on white cotton gloves, and the best man had a high silk hat of a century ago. But the climax came when the bride and groom stopped at the font on the way out and presented triplets a year old to be baptized. The bridal-christening party seemed very happy. We must give them credit for one thing—they desired the rites of the Church enough to travel from Guanica, thirty miles west from here, and back again. And, barring the triplets, for even in Porto Rico they are not common, there are many more just like them at Guanica; so who can say there is not need for a church there?"

Guanica is a town of some importance. The people are eager for the establishment of a mission. If the reinforcements that Ponce needs can be provided, their wishes can be complied with. Mr. Watson has also been reaching out to the Playa, or Port of Ponce, two miles away, and has begun mission work in an orange packing house, kindly placed at his disposal by a Hebrew business man.

If the Ponce Sunday-school failed to send an Easter offering for the general work of the Church in the mission field, it was not because its members neglected to gather their Lenten savings for missions. On the contrary, they observed that good custom in common with the schools throughout the American Church, and were able to place at Mr. Watson's disposal over $30 for the maintenance of the Playa mission.

Just after Easter a new vestry was elected for Holy Trinity, Ponce. Its membership comprises some of the best known business men of the city, whose aid will be valuable in the erection of the new church which has become a positive necessity. The present Holy Trinity is an old iron building erected about thirty years ago, when Ponce first became one of the stations of the English Diocese of Antigua. It was badly damaged by the cyclone which swept over the Island in 1899, and while it has been repaired as fully as possible, its condition is so unsatisfactory that an attempt to repair it would really be a waste of money.

This Ponce vestry is interesting, in view of the many different elements it contains. In point of Churchmanship its members represent everything from "ultra ritualistic to ultra low." In addition it contains a Methodist, a Lutheran and a Presbyterian. The Ponce church, therefore, promises to be a strong centre of Church unity. In conversation with one of his vestrymen, Mr. Watson asked what kind of Churchmanship the vestry represented. The reply was: "High, and very high—and as high in this direction — as in this |. The resulting combination is this +,—the cross."

Readers of THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS wishing to help in the building of the new Ponce church may send their gifts marked for that purpose to the Treasurer of the Missionary Society, Mr. George C. Thomas, 281 Fourth Avenue, New York.

THE NEW GRACE CHURCH AT CLAY-ASHLAND

West African Notes

BY BISHOP FERGUSON

IN Africa it is not often that we have the privilege of joining on the same day in services for the ordination of clergymen and the consecration of a church. Recently at Clay-Ashland that was the case, when the new Grace Church was consecrated, and Mr. E. W. McKrae and Mr. M. W. G. Muhlenberg were ordained deacons. Years ago a church was erected at Clay-Ashland; but after the death of the Rev. A. F. Russell, the work declined and the building fell into decay. Efforts to revive it proved unsuccessful until within the last few years. The work of the Rev. Mr. Cassell, until his removal to Monrovia, laid the foundations for the new mission. Later Mr. McKrae, working as lay-reader under my supervision, has succeeded in building up the congregation. For a long time the services were conducted in the uninviting town hall. In January, 1903, the corner-stone of the new building was laid. To-day the church stands complete, with the exception of the window sashes, which we hope some of our friends at home may be able to provide before the next rainy season.

As we wished to leave the inconvenient town hall as soon as possible, it was decided to consecrate the church and begin the use of it at once. Many people were present from Monrovia and from neighboring settlements on the St. Paul's River, so that the church was crowded. After the service of consecration had been said, the two deacons were ordained. The Rev. Dr. Gibson, our oldest priest in the district, preached the sermon.

Mr. McKrae has been working for several years as a catechist and teacher at Clay-Ashland. He and his school boys helped greatly by contributing their work to the building of the church. Mr. Muhlenberg has proved himself for many years a faithful catechist and teacher in St. Augustine's School. Both young men belong to the Gedebo Tribe, near Cape Palmas. It is a great satisfaction to have our clerical force recruited, as is steadily the case, from the native

Africans. In addition to the two young men just ordained, and the one ordained in November, 1903, there are six candidates in Epiphany Hall, Cuttington.

On the afternoon of this same day the Sunday-schools from the rural districts surrounding the new church had a joint service, and the building was again crowded with children. Here, as at the morning service, several of the state officials were present, among others the President of Liberia, the United States Minister, two ex-presidents, a justice of the Supreme Court and others. The offerings of the day were devoted to the furnishing of the new church and amounted to $131.

A Comment from an Alaska Missionary—a Woman, too

"I HAVE no regrets and no disappointments; I am perfectly happy in my work. Except for frequent falls of snow and rain, we are having beautiful weather; the days have lengthened beyond the span of your very longest—and the south wind, though raw and cold from the ocean, delights in piling up glories of cloud in white and silver and gray against the snowy peaks that guard us on every side. After all, the missionaries in Alaska are more fortunate than those whose work calls them to take a seat on the equator—and much as they pity us in winter they might be glad to borrow a shiver or two in July."

A SUBSCRIBER to THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS in a Tennessee mountain town asks, in a letter accompanying a gift for missions: "Is there no clergyman desirous to come to this famed health resort, who would preach and instruct the people, while receiving the benefit of our mountain air and water? Only one clergyman of the Church has ever officiated here. Many people in this county have never even seen a minister of the Church."

An Opportunity for a Profitable Holiday

STRICTLY missionary will be a Vacation Conference that is to be held in the "Leather Stocking Country" of the western Catskills in August. It will seek to deepen the spiritual life, and to increase the desire to help others to know the Gospel in its fulness. The dates of the conference are August 4th to 14th, and the principal sessions will be held at Richfield Springs. Some sessions will be held at Cooperstown. These places are nine miles apart, and connected by trolley.

The speakers expected include the Rev. J. O. S. Huntington, of the Order of the Holy Cross; the Rev. John R. Matthews, Archdeacon of Columbus; the Rev. Harvey Officer, Jr., of the St. Paul's Society of Princeton University, and the Rev. Samuel R. Colladay, of Berkeley Divinity-school. Father Huntington and Archdeacon Matthews will give series of three or four addresses each, and Prof. Colladay will lead the morning Bible-class. Speakers who will try to help workers seeking to increase their missionary zeal include Bishop Kinsolving, of Southern Brazil, and some other missionary bishops of the Church in foreign lands, if they arrive in time; Secretaries of the Board of Missions and of the Church Missionary Society; Mr. Hubert Carleton, of the Brotherhood, and Mr. Henry W. Harvest, of the Young Men's Christian Union of New York. There will be morning training classes for Sunday-school teachers, led by the Rev. Wm. Walter Smith, M.A., of the New York Sunday-school Commission, and two addresses on Church music, by Mr. Walter Henry Hall, choirmaster of St. James's Church, New York. There will be a celebration of the Holy Communion each morning at seven, and a devotional meeting each evening at seven.

On the first Sunday afternoon there will be held, under the trees of Christ churchyard, at Cooperstown, an outdoor mass meeting for missions, and on the second Sunday a similar meeting will be held at Richfield Springs. Vested choristers will lead the singing, and the speakers will be missionary bishops and prominent laymen.

Morning discussions will be held on the work of Church schools, the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, laymen's leagues, the Daughters of the King, the Church Students' Missionary Association, and general missions. An exhibit of Sunday-school helps, surpassing in completeness anything heretofore presented, will be made.

Every afternoon, and both Saturdays, will be left free for recreation. This can consist of boating on Lakes Otsego and Canadarego, trolley trips through thirty miles of beautiful uplands of the Catskills, bathing in mineral and fresh water, bowling, golfing, tally-ho trips, band concerts and tennis and base-ball. The rates for driving, boating and bathing are very moderate, while the golf links and the band concerts are tendered free. Summer rates are made on all railroads, and rates of board in the twenty hotels are from $1.50 a day up. Living is quite reasonable. Indeed, from almost any point within a radius of Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburg and Buffalo, one may have the full ten days of conference and recreation, room and board, railway transportation, and Pullman both ways, for $25.

The American Church Missionary Society has undertaken the detail of the conference, not, of course, in its own interests merely, but to help the missionary work of the whole Church. For list of hotels, for railroad routes and rates, and for the full programme, as soon as ready, address Eugene M. Camp, Office Secretary, American Church Missionary Society, 281 Fourth Avenue, New York.

Self-Help in Spokane

BISHOP WELLS, of Spokane, recently received this letter from Palouse, Wash., where the little group of Church people have been without a settled clergyman for a year, and in the interim have had but few services.

Although we have no clergyman, we had a very pleasant Easter service. The choir prepared three hymns; we sang the Te Deum and Benedictus. I conducted the service, beginning with the General Confession, Lord's Prayer, and so on through the Easter service. We had a good congregation; we held the service in the afternoon, and all expressed themselves greatly comforted. I don't know as I had any right to read the service, but the members thought they could not keep the little church closed all day on Easter. They requested me to ask you if we might hold service in the afternoon once in two weeks, some one of us reading the service, and they also hoped you would soon secure a clergyman for Palouse. The members had not prepared for an Easter Offering, but I took it up and had $2.80.

The writer of the letter is a woman. Surely that congregation deserves a clergyman.

"A few days ago," says the Bishop, "I was at Pomeroy, another place which is vacant and has had very little pastoral oversight for the last two years. While there I confirmed eleven young people, well prepared by their Sunday-school teachers for the apostolic rite.

"On Thursday I am going to Dayton, which has no clergyman, but some who were prepared for confirmation by Mr. Dexter, before he left, are preparing others, for whose sake they asked to have their own confirmation deferred until this week, and in this orphan mission is a class of eighteen or twenty now ready.

"Surely the Holy Spirit continues to work, even where we can get no human minister to take up the burden."

A PAUSE IN THE DAILY ROUTINE AT ST. MARY'S SCHOOL, ROSEBUD

Two Fundamental Questions

How Indian Children Answered Them

LAST spring the Niobrara League of New York offered prizes to the boys and girls of St. Mary's and St. Elizabeth's Indian Schools in South Dakota for the best answers to the questions:

Why is the gift of life given us? How are we to make the best use of this great gift?

Ten of the older pupils responded. The answers I. II. and III. carried off the prizes. The papers were the unaided work of the scholars.

I.

ELIZABETH DORIAN

[Age, fifteen.]

WHY is the gift of life given us? Because God wanted us in the same image and likeness of Himself. After God created everything and saw they were good, He wanted also to have a man in the image of Himself.

How are we to make the best use of this great gift?

By leading a Christian life. By loving one another. By being kind. By loving and serving God with all our hearts. By teaching others about how our Lord Jesus died for our sins. By trying to be like Him, patient, true and just, and loving all who hate us. By bearing all pain cheerfully, for He bore very great pain when He was hanging on the cross.

St. Mary's School

II.

LILLIAN STANDING BEAR

[Age, sixteen.]

WHY is the gift of life given us? How are we to make the best use of this great gift?

Our lives are given to us by our God that we may trust in Him and be patient when we have troubles, then we will be glorifying and honoring Him. This world is full of good and bad people, and the good ought always to try and help the bad to live better lives, by teaching them to be true and honest. Two of the best things in life are to be true and honest. Then God will give us His blessing, and love us more. We should be glad and thankful that we are alive and enjoy all the good things He gives us, and not murmur like the children of Israel.

This is the way I think we ought to make use of our lives. We should love God first, and then be in charity with all men, especially our enemies, if we have any. I think we can be missionaries in our own homes and when we are in school. We ought to try and help our brothers and sisters by teaching them about Jesus Christ when they are small, so that when they grow up to be men and women, they will teach others about our Father in Heaven. Hundreds of our brothers and sisters in this world do not know anything about Christ. We should try and help them too.

St. Mary's School

III.

LYMA DELORIA

IT was God's plan and power whereby God gave the gift of life to me to be in a generation.

He also wants me to see and think of how wise and good He is. I think that God puts in the world for a trial of the many good things and watches me to see if I would like the earthly things more than He, who has done so much for me. We can keep our lives clean and good only by asking for God's Holy Spirit to our guide. If we get against a worry trouble He is ready to forgive us if we are truly sorry and repent of it.

We must not go on leading a wicked life because He does not want our souls destroyed. When anyone has not heard of God we can teach them of Him and help save their soul.

St. Elizabeth's School

IV.

SAMUEL REDBIRD

[Age, twelve.]

THE gift of life is given us that we may take a good care of it.

We can make the best use of this great gift by obeying God and doing just as He tells us to do and do His will.

St. Elizabeth's School

It is unnecessary to enlarge here upon the significance of training Indian boys and girls, whose lives, it may be, were begun, whose early years were spent in the rude tepees and among the untutored conditions to which their parents have been accustomed for the greater part of their lives, into such an appreciation of Christian privilege and duty. The words of these children of the plains speak for themselves.

AT THE WOOD-PILE

The Meeting of the Board of Managers

May 10th, 1904

THE Board of Managers met at the Church Missions House May 10th. There were present of the elected members: The Bishops of Albany (vice-president, in the chair), Pennsylvania, New Jersey, West Virginia, Pittsburgh, New York, Nebraska, Central Pennsylvania, Washington, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Long Island, Massachusetts, and the Bishop Coadjutor of New York; the Rev. Drs. Eccleston, Huntington, Applegate, Vibbert, Anstice, Alsop, Perry, Stires, McKim, Parks, Washburn, Williams, and Messrs. Low, Mills, Chauncey, Goodwin, Mansfield, Gardner, Butler, King, Morris and Pepper. The Bishop of Indianapolis, an ex-officio member, was also present.

The Treasurer's report showed that the net increase in contributions applying upon the appropriations of the Board up to May 1st was $11,501.76. For five weeks after Easter there had been received from 2,168 Sunday-schools $51,113.48, an average of $23.57 per school. During the same length of time last year there was received from 2,175 Sunday-schools $49,248.37, averaging $22.68 per school. The total appropriations to date for the current fiscal year amount to $826,537; including the deficit on September 1st, 1903.

The Rev. Rufus W. Clark, D.D., as chairman of the Commission on Domestic and Foreign Missions of the Diocese of Michigan, informed the Board of a proposed Layman's Missionary Conference to be held in the city of Detroit on November 15th next, to be composed of the Churchmen of five affiliated States of the Middle-West, namely, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin, and asked on behalf of the Commission for the co-operation of the Board of Managers and the appointment of a deputation of laymen to attend. Whereupon it was

"Resolved: That this Board commends the efforts on the part of the Michigan Missionary Commission to arouse a further interest in laymen in the cause of missions, and the Board believes a conference of the leading laymen of the Middle-West will be of great good to the better understanding of the demands of the Church's great work both at home and abroad.

"Resolved: That a committee of three laymen, members of this Board, be appointed to attend this Conference."

The chair appointed as such committee: Mr. George C. Thomas, Mr. George Wharton Pepper and Mr. George Gordon King.

The matter of the appropriations for the next fiscal year received the most careful attention. Those for domestic and foreign missions were made with a view simply to taking care of the natural increase of the work. To do this, the Board found that it was absolutely necessary to increase the gross amount by about $20,000 over and above the amounts similarly appropriated last May. If the appropriations had been made according to the urgent requests of the bishops to be allowed to enter upon work offering on all sides, the increase would have been much greater. The Board always feels that there is nothing so difficult as to decline to meet the reasonable requests of the missionary bishops whom the Church has sent out to do her work at home and abroad.

At the solicitation of the Commission on Work among the Colored People $1,000 additional each was given to the Bishop Payne Divinity-school and to St. Paul's School, Lawrenceville, Va. (This appropriation of $2,000 is included in the increase of $20,000, alluded to above.)

Bishop Rowe was heard from in Southern California, under date of May 4th. He was improved in health and was expecting within a short time to proceed to the southern coast of Alaska; having an appointment at Ketchikan on or about May 20th. The Bishop has assigned Mr. Paul Williams, a native worker, to be the companion of Archdeacon Stuck in his journeyings next winter. Very unexpectedly a letter was received from the Rev. John B. Driggs, M.D., at Point Hope, who was in the midst of the usual winter work and the natives were proving very faithful in their attendance upon church and school.

Bishop Van Buren was heard from on the eve of his sailing for a visitation in Cuba and is expecting to arrive in New York about June 1st. From the Bishop's letter and those from others it is plain that there is great room and need for the enlargement of the work of the Church in Porto Rico.

Bishop Brent was heard from as late as March 25th. He was then en route to Bontoc, thence he would strike across the country to Baguio. Was expecting to reach Manila again on April 29th, and after visiting Zamboanga and Cotabato he would be leaving for the United States by way of Europe, expecting to reach Genoa July 23d, where his address will be care of the American Consul until August 14th.

Letters were submitted from all the foreign bishops. The Bishop of Cape Palmas urges the necessity for immediate work upon one of the buildings for the Girls' Training Institute on the St. Paul's River near Monrovia, since the lease of the hired house that they are occupying will soon expire, and there is no assurance that it can be renewed.

The Bishop asked for a speedy appropriation of the $6,000, which is required in addition to the amount appropriated by the Liberian Government, but the Board was obliged to inform him that it would not meet his wishes at the present time, because of lack of funds. On the Thursday before Easter, March 31st, the Bishop consecrated St. Luke's Chapel, Edina, near Bassa, and on Easter Day confirmed ten persons in the same building. This chapel was built entirely by local effort. A remittance of $60 from Trinity Memorial Sunday-school, Monrovia, being received, and similar remittances for the last four years showing a steady gain, the Board took occasion by resolution to offer its congratulations to the Rev. N. H. B. Cassell, rector, and his Sunday-school.

The Bishop of Haiti writes that he will soon ordain two young men who have been students of the local Divinity-school, one of whom is the son of the Rev. Pierre E. Jones, who is a graduate of the Philadelphia Divinity-school. Two other young men are taking preparatory studies for the ministry in St. Paul's School, Lawrenceville, and the Bishop Payne Divinity-school, Petersburg, Va.

The Standing Committee on Audit and Finance reported that they had caused the books and accounts of the Treasurer to be examined to the first instant, and had certified the same to be correct.

Mr. Robert C. Pruyn, of the Diocese of Albany, was elected to membership in the Board, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Leslie Pell-Clarke.

Notes

OF the 1,500 people living in Minneapolis, Kan., in the District of Salina, fifty-six are communicants of the Church. The Easter Offering of the Sunday-school and congregation for general missions amounts to just about $100. No wonder there have been fifty baptisms during the last year. Many a large eastern parish might take a cue from the example of this small western congregation.

UNDER the auspices and at the request of one of his parish societies, a western clergyman gave four Lenten afternoon readings from the writings of Robert Louis Stevenson, Robert Browning and Alfred Tennyson. The proceeds from the modest admission fee charged were divided equally between the work of the parish society and the rector's personal Lenten mite-box for missions. It turns out that his share amounts to about $70, so that possibly this Lenten box will contain more than any other box in the country.

THE action of Chinese officials in contributing largely to the building fund of St. John's College, Shanghai, has had a counterpart among some of the officials of the north in giving to the support of the medical missions in Shantung. Yuan Shih-k'ai has subscribed 100 taels, the Governor 60, and a number of other higher officials 40 taels each.

THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

To the Board of Missions

THE COMPLETED HOUSE AT WUSIH

Wusih: A Woman's Auxiliary Station

BY THE REVEREND GOUVERNEUR FRANK MOSHER

BISHOP GRAVES divided his share of the last United Offering between Soochow and Wusih. Thus the Shanghai District has been enabled to reach out to two entirely new places—new, that is, to the mission, though “as old as the hills” to China. Now that the $1,750 given to Wusih has been invested, the time has come to tell what it has accomplished. Briefly, it has bought us a piece of land over half an acre in extent and has erected two buildings, thus making us the first mission in the city to own land and buildings—except for a small church outside the South Gate, belonging to the Southern Methodists.

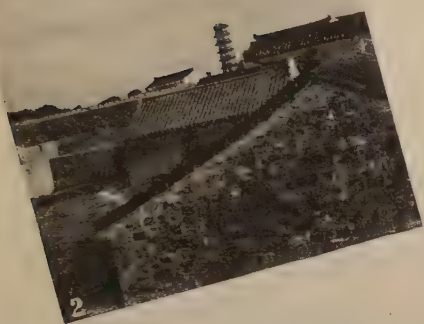

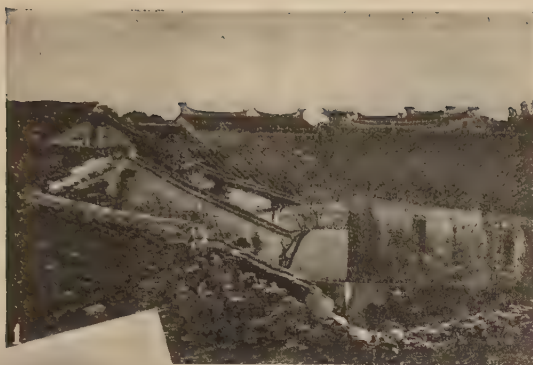

It is a temptation now to go back over the history of the past four years, from the time when we were first talking of “passing from the small to the large, from the field of the city [Shanghai] and its out-stations to the field of the province [Kiangsu] and its endless calls and opportunities for work,” as the Bishop has expressed it, down to the present, when a beginning has really been made and we have both foreign and native workers resident in three cities, as contrasted with three years ago, when we had only a native catechist in one. But this story has already been told in full in THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS,* in three articles written at the times the steps they relate were taken. A re-reading of these three articles shows that the general outline of work as then laid out has been followed, but that, as time went on, and the work developed, many of the details were carried out in ways that could not be foreseen at first. The last account leaves us recently settled in Wusih, in a large native house which we had rented. Here our deacon, with his family, was located, and a boarding-school opened for ten Christian boys, who were preparing to enter St. John's College. An English day-school, too, was started, which has paid us enough to buy all our furniture and still pays about one-third of the running-expenses of the boarding-school. The other general departments of evangelistic work are centred here also.

This was all very well—but we needed something more permanent. At best, a rented house is only a makeshift so far as accommodation is concerned. And this was the problem: "How can we make a permanent home for our work without any money?" Then, early in 1902, the Bishop returned from the General Convention with the cheerful message that this had been made possible by the generosity of the Woman's Auxiliary. Of course such a statement as this has long ceased to cause any surprise, for one cannot be engaged in missionary work long without learning where he may place his dependence in times of real need. But, surprise or no, there is no lessening of one's gratitude.

The story of the purchase of land, if given in detail, would be as tiresome to the reader as it was both tiresome and vexatious to the purchaser. There is plenty of vacant land within the city, but it has come down by inheritance to its present owners—and in China it is considered disgraceful to sell an inheritance, especially to a foreigner. Choice pieces of land were not for sale, and no inducement could change the situation. Pieces that were anything but choice could easily be bought for three or four times their value. But "every lane has its turning"; finally a choice piece which could be bought was discovered, and after three months of daily negotiations the purchase was made. It was ten months and three days from the date of the first permission to buy given by the Bishop.

The land is situated inside the city, about five minutes' walk from the South Gate, on the main street extending from the North to the South Gates on the east residence. The latter is, of course, the larger building, and was completed in September last.

The illustrations show something of the Chinese methods of building, and their results. While the mason is laying the foundation, the carpenter works away cutting and sawing the beams which are to serve as the framework of the building. For several weeks the foreigner has opportunity of learning how to be patient; there is plenty of noise, but nothing visible comes of it. And then, suddenly—behold! It is as the touch of a side of the city. Across the street is the large creek which divides the city in the middle, north and south, and over this creek is a stone bridge, which connects the main street on our side with the similar and parallel one on the west side. The land is L-shaped, with openings on two streets, and is so located that as there is need of extension neighboring lots may be bought. Perhaps in, say, twenty years, the mission will own the entire corner. This land and the two buildings on it are the gift of the Woman's Auxiliary to Wusih; with the paying for them the fund is just exhausted. The two buildings are a gate-house and temporary dispensary, and a school, which is temporarily serving as a foreign fairy, for in one brief day's work is erected all that is shown in the first illustration. But fairies are proverbially wilful and spasmodic in their actions; for three or four days nothing more is seen of them. And then, once again, another brief day's work and all the remainder of the framework is in place. Thereafter no fairies reappear, and their work is committed to the foreign missionary, who devotes his time to asking three questions: "Why don't you call more men?" "Why don't you work at least six hours a day?" and "During the hours you are at work why don't you do less smoking and tea-drinking, and more work?" These questions have never yet been answered satisfactorily.

DR. DAE AT WORK

In China, where one is veritably "through the looking-glass," the roof is built first, and then the walls, which in other countries would support the roof. One may not go so far as to say that the roof holds up the walls—but certainly the walls have not the function of supporting the roof. Finally—and all obtainable evidence absolutely convinces one that it is entirely contrary to the wishes of every carpenter and mason concerned, but—finally, the building is completed and ready for occupation. Its architecture is simple: five rooms in a row, each ten feet wide and twenty feet long, and each with a door in front and a window at the back. On the end, a room five feet wide for a hallway containing the staircase. The upper floor is exactly like the lower. A four-foot veranda serves as a passageway from room to room. Back of the building, and separated from it by a court eight feet wide, is a row of three rooms, each ten feet square, for kitchen and servants' quarters.

Something of the location is shown by the illustrations. A view from the upper veranda, facing southeast, shows the pagoda and the top of the temple in whose grounds it is built, with a stretch of the city wall; while one facing toward the southwest is evidence of our having "next-door neighbors." A few miles northwest of the city stands the Mountain of the Gracious Spring—to the three temples on the three peaks of which go thousands of pilgrims once every year.

A very beautiful view of this, with the sun shining on it in the morning and sinking behind it at twilight, is the great delight to be obtained from the windows in the back of the rooms on the second floor.

Through the kindness of Dr. Jefferys, we are able to add two pictures of the dispensary, which unfortunately is built on such a Chinese-ily "enclosed" plan that an adequate view may not be given. One shows Dr. Dae standing at the entrance to the little courtyard, and the other gives him at work.

Thus stands "Wusih: A Woman's Auxiliary Station." The four mow (over half an acre) of land and two buildings, all the property of the mission, are a result of the last United Offering. And to these must be added a delightfully-toned Mason & Hamlin organ from the Juniors of South Carolina; games, books, and many kindnesses from the Ladies' Missionary Society of Emmanuel Church, Boston; and scholarships from Western New York, Connecticut, and two or three individuals whose names have been withheld.

In gratitude for so many blessings, the rector asks the further one, that to their gifts those to whom this station owes so much will add their prayers—prayers which shall ask that all that is done here may be to the glory of God, the salvation of souls, and the welfare, both temporal and spiritual, of the Chinese nation, into whose life God has sent these souls.

"GOOD-BY"

THE CHURCH AND RECTORY AT PEAKE, S. C.

One Phase of Colored Work

BY ARCHDEACON JOYNER, OF SOUTH CAROLINA

IT is with plans of missionary work among the Negroes as with other things—"many men of many minds." And this, too, according to conditions. Leaving the other "wide world" of missions to "wag as it will," down in "ole Souf Caliny" we have our own opinions, and these, according to the judgment of the Bishop and Arch-deacon, based upon conditions which are obvious. We are not laying out great things in the larger centres of population. The fact is, in the cities and large towns others have taken in hand to provide schools and churches. The State, the local corporations, the different Christian bodies have pretty thoroughly covered the ground, and the colored people have at their hand educational and religious privileges. We, in view of all this, with what means we have been able to command, have gone into the lanes and alleys, in the outskirt settlements, among the submerged and ragged. We have pushed on out into the highways and hedges of our State, among a Negro population numbering nearly 800,000 in its eleven rural communities. In Charleston there are many good schools, city, denominational and private. But across the Asheley River, eight miles away, among the phosphate diggers and truckers, but for our St. Andrew's, of nearly 200 children, there would be nothing. It is the same at Columbia, where there are a very large city school, several denominational schools and "universities." In one neglected side of town we have St. Mary's, the mission house and allied industries; in another outskirt St. Anna's; in yet another, equally neglected, a day and Sunday-school, now to be known as St. Gabriel's.

A striking evolution of this country school system is St. Simon's, Peake. Here we started about ten years ago, without a member, at the urgent plea of the father of a large family, among a considerable number of colored people, who had no school, and the character of whose church impelled the father al-luded to to seek refuge with us for his children. Now at Peake we have not only a communicant list of about forty, but a large school, out of which have gone young men and women into a sphere of life and labor very different from what had been known previously in that community. Besides, St. Simon's has several offsprings, and its minister, the Rev. J. S. Quarles, is the head of five different country congregations.

One of the young men inspired and trained at Peake is now the lay-missionary at Emmanuel mission, twenty-five miles from Columbia in an opposite direction. And this is one of our blessed object lessons. Some years ago, a gentle-hearted white woman—now in Paradise—living in this neighborhood, saw the wretched condition of the colored folk, how ignorant and sinful they were, and all because “no man cared for their souls.” She yearned over them until she could stand it no longer, and came to us. For $150 we built a house, which now serves as a chapel, school-house, club-room and what not. We have a large school and Sunday-school, and monthly visits from a minister. Wonderful the uplift! Never before had the people of this community anything to point them to the better way.

We do not seem able to stay the spirit of progress, though for financial reasons we do have to try. Our young men and women, imbued at our missions with the aspiration of a new life, carry with them into the places where they go a zeal which must often express itself in the desire to impart what they have received. More than one of our missions is the outgrowth of this spirit. I had occasion, recently, to go quite a distance into the country, in Lexington County. It was a bitter cold day, and I looked forward to getting by a fire. When I reached the house, what should I find but—a mission! We had never heard of it. The founder of it ushered us into her bedroom, and at the same time into the midst of a school; and it was not Sunday, either! Seated around the fire, on benches and boxes, were about twenty children, and the fireplace blazing with a mighty warmth. I did not have the heart to say, “This is all wrong; you ought never to have done this thing away out here in the country; this ‘highway-and-hedge’ business makes no show in the world!” What I did say was, “Why didn’t you tell me about it?” She said, “Because you have so much on your hands; and I thought I could do this for a while, anyway.” And my reply was: “Go ahead, and God bless you, and I will help with these children.” She gathers them on Sundays as well. And surely there will go out from the sweet motive and thorough method of that Christian daughter of the Church a character-building which will tell for good, the common good of those who receive, and will give, in turn, of what they get there.

The larger number of our thirty-seven missions, of our twenty-five day-schools, are in these out-of-the-way places. Thank God that we can be there with them! It is for duty, it is for service, it is for strengthening the weak. This simple sort of mission work does not attract much notice. But here we all see the need of it, and the results.

One good great centre we have, a veritable hive of affairs. This is the mission house at Columbia. This institution is pretty well known, but it is always of new interest. We receive here the boxes, barrels and other packages and parcels which are sent to us by the Woman's Auxiliary and other friends. These are all opened under the eye of the superintendent, Mrs. Joyner. Articles required by the destitute are given them with real joy. You can imagine what relief these so often bring, such pitiful want do so many of our wretchedly poor folk suffer. Happy are we, when able to give any of them what will minister to their comfort and, equally, to the feeling that they are not forsaken. The far larger portion of the articles are sold. But a little bit is ever asked, yet nothing is of free gift which can be avoided. Our “customers” have been educated both to the principle and expediency of this system. Time was, when the colored people needed to be taken care of, and liberally supplied. That time passed, but still they expected and demanded it. It took a deal of firmness to make the change. Many hard and bitter things were said against us for charging for the things. This is all quite understood now; that it is best for all to be put upon an equal footing, all having the same chance, with no complaint or danger of "partiality." They understand that it is more honorable to pay for their possessions, having gotten some of their first lessons through us at the mission house. They are also taught that the profit of the sales help in the work, enable us to give money to the sick, the old, the invalids, even to bury the dead. But the other day, a helpless old paralytic, nearly eighty—sister Patsy Canty—after a long, miserable illness during which we provided for her, happily went to the first rest she had had for many a year; and we were doubly glad to pay for her burial. It cost us $14 from our mission store.

ST. ANDREW'S CHAPEL, BELL-TOWER AND SCHOOL BUILDING,

At Christmas and Easter we send to the more distant missions what things they need for the entertainments in the schools, supplying more than 1,500 children. We often send to the country missions boxes of clothing, sometimes having to buy clothing for the very poor, when it is not on hand, "upon our shelves." This very day, the superintendent is "up-street," investing six mission house dollars in flannel underwear for a helpless sick man, a faithful old brother, out in the country. We have several sewing schools, also, which look to us for material. The business of the mission house now takes the whole time of the saleswoman, Mrs. Rosa Screen Shelton, who, with Mrs. Mancebo, has charge of the industrial classes.

We greatly appreciate all the kindness which has been shown us, for our people's and our Saviour's sake. We feel this to be a glorious task, and are all the more honored because of its lowliness and simplicity.

Prayer for Missions

In the California Branch

WE do inculcate this duty on all possible occasions, and we have many women prayerful for missions.

The Rev. Mr. Weeden, St. Luke's rector, has arranged a corporate Communion for his branch with, I think, an address at the time—monthly.

This year, to the regret of the few who could attend, we dropped the Oakland Quiet Day, as these women attend our Quiet Day in San Francisco, and we feel that we should encourage attendance at parish services and leaven them with missionary purport rather than multiply our special occasions.

We have just had a wonderful Quiet Day, as you will easily infer from the general subject—The Spirit of Truth—which our Bishop treated under the sub-headings: "Of Truth in Christ"; "Of Truth in the Church"; "Of Truth in Holy Scripture"; "Of Truth in the Sacraments," and "Of Truth in the Heart."

Our missionary requests were made known unto God in the noonday service.

Our service on "Altar Day"—the Feast of the Transfiguration—is always the occasion for a peculiarly intimate instruction from our Bishop, and for the uplift that is easiest when practical details are for awhile out of sight; and it comes in summer when the women who must stay at home can have this refreshment.

In this connection I should like to know whether other branches practise the kind of intercession in use with us. Nothing on the human side so brings us together before God as these petitions, which, collected in a box at the door by the conductor, are inserted into the Litany, usually just before the petition "That it may please Thee to have mercy upon all men"; each request introduced by the words, "That it may please Thee to," the congregation responding. Curiosity is in abeyance, one feels a holy awe in the presence of the unknown sorrows of known friends, and human hearts merge in the cry for help in the common lot of man.

How a Mothers' Meeting Helps

THE director of a Mothers' Meeting, in reporting a box sent by its members to a sewing-class of young Indian mothers in Shoshone Agency, writes: "The supplies for the sewing-class, which amounted to $10.74, were largely from self-denial in lives already so barren one scarcely sees where anything more can be offered. As the women brought me spools of thread, pieces of tape and cards of buttons they had purchased with the pennies saved from carfare going home after a hard day's work, you can imagine how I felt."

The Sanctuary of Missions

Watch, Pray, Act

IT was not warning that our fathers lacked;

It is not warning that we lack to-day.
The Voice that cried still cries, "Rise up and act:

Watch alway—watch and pray—
watch alway—

All men."

Alas! if aught was lacked, good will was lacked;

Alas! good will is what we lack to-day.
O gracious Voice, grant grace that all may act,

Watch and act—watch and pray—
watch alway.

Intercessions

That, knowing the shortness of their opportunity, Christian people may seek to do the will of God in proclaiming the Gospel to all people.

That parents may find their highest joy in dedicating their children to the service of their Lord.¹

That it may please God to over-rule to the advancement of His Kingdom the conflict now being waged, and to hasten the restoration of peace.

That the Japanese Christians and others called to take up arms may commend their Faith by consistent life and conduct.

That God's blessing may continue to rest upon Mr. Watson's work at Ponce, and that the clergymen needed for the mission may be found.

For the people of Wusih, that they may receive and follow the Gospel of our Lord.

That Boone School, Wuchang, may continue to prosper, and that the $15,000 needed for the new building may speedily be given.

For Missionaries

O MOST merciful Saviour and Redeemer, who wouldest not that any should perish, but that all men should be saved and come to the knowledge of the truth; fulfil Thy gracious promise to be present with those who are gone forth in Thy Name to preach the Gospel of salvation (especially —). Be with them in all perils by land or by water, in sickness and distress, in weariness and painfulness, in disappointment and persecution. Give them peace and sure confidence in Thee. Pour out upon them abundantly Thy Holy Spirit, and prosper mightily the work of their hands; send unto them, according to their need, faithful and true fellow-laborers, and give them a rich increase here, and a blessed reward hereafter, for the sake of Jesus Christ our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

For Boone School, Wuchang

ALMIGHTY God, who hast taught us in Thy Holy Word that Thou wilt honor the labors of Thy servants with large increase, we yield Thee hearty thanks for the prosperity and success of Boone School. Bless those who teach and those who are taught. Guide them with Thy wisdom; strengthen them with Thy power; inspire them with Thy love. Grant, we beseech Thee, that many in this Christian land may be moved to give, as they are able, for the erection of the new building, that the knowledge of Thy truth may be more widely spread abroad, through Christ our Lord. Amen.

¹"I sometimes wonder why it is that when mother and father are so delighted when the son in the army is ordered out to South Africa to a good post, or another son goes to a position on the Congo River and has the chance of making money, and everyone gives him a good send off—why, when a third son wants to be a missionary in Central Africa, everybody opposes him."—Bishop of London.

All things come of Thee, O Lord,
And of Thine own have we given Thee.

Offerings are asked to sustain missions in twenty-six missionary districts in the United States, Africa, China and Japan; also work in the Haitian Church and in Mexico*; in thirty-nine dioceses, including missions to the Indians and to the Colored People; to pay the salaries of twenty-five bishops, and stipends to 1,673 missionary workers, and to support schools, hospitals and orphanages.

With all remittances the name of the Diocese and Parish should be given. Remittances, when practicable, should be by Check or Draft, and should always be made payable to the order of George C. Thomas, Treasurer, and sent to him, Church Missions House, 281 Fourth Avenue, New York.

Remittances in Bank Notes are not safe unless sent in Registered Letters.

* For support of the Clergyman representing this Church.
